BAKER MURDER HUNT VEERS TO COUNTY TOWN

Rendezvous of Thieves Combed for Slayer of Capital Girl.

ROBBERY ACCEPTED AS CAUSE OF ATTACK

All Other Leads Thought False After Long Investigation.

PROMINENT OFFICER RECONSTRUCTS CASE

Movements of Assailant and Victim on Fatal Night Traced in Detail.

Mary Baker's killer is being sought in Queen City, Va., commonly known as "Hell's Bottom," a rendezvous for the colored element of the underworld.

Concentration of the hunt in the small settlement of Negroes in Arlington County followed acceptance of the theory that the girl was killed by a thief who used "Hell's Bottom" as a hideout, and who pilfered articles from automobiles in the vicinity of the Ellipse. One prominent official in the murder investigation last night said that he had adopted the thief theory as the most plausible and is confident that the perpetrator of the crime will be apprehended by its development.

When this theory was advanced several of the investigators were in the midst of an attempt to pin the crime on an acquaintance of the girl. Since all previously under suspicion have been vindicated, police have turned to the belief that a looter of parked cars is the man who committed the murder.

Shelby Favors Theory.

Inspector William S. Shelby, when questioned regarding the theory did not consider it improbable. All previous leads have been checked out after exhaustive investigation. The presence of articles stolen from other machines with personal effects of Miss Baker have added credence to the theory.

One of the prominent investigators was interviewed last night and expressed the wish that he be not quoted on his reconstruction of the crime, which he bases on the various articles in the widely separated points.

His belief is that a light-skinned colored man had been attracted to Miss Baker. For several weeks this man had been stealing small articles from parked automobiles in the Ellipse. During that period he had noticed that Miss Baker invariably left her machine near the same spot.

Waited for Chance.

For weeks he waited until his opportunity arrived on the night of April 11. Miss Baker had left her machine parked longer than usual. As she stepped into the left front door of the car, it is the belief, a gun was drawn by the man and he ordered her to the other side seat.

When she resisted the man struck her with the butt of the revolver. As proof of this statement the investigator offered the autopsy report which said that the inside of Miss Baker's lower lip was bruised and three teeth had been loosened.

When Miss Baker lifted her head after receiving the blow and she was seen by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Wood and Frank Rice, blood was pouring from her mouth. These witnesses pointed out that her face was contorted in a desperate appeal for aid.

Drove Over Key Bridge.

After driving northward on Seventeenth street, it is believed the man drove over Key Bridge, through Rosslyn and to the Experimental Farm of the Department of Agriculture. About 100 feet north of Cemetery Road, where the keys and doctor's bill were found, it is thought that Miss Baker made a desperate fight against her assailant.

After the criminal assault and the killing the actions of the man are traced north on the Experimental Farm road to the sewer basin, where her clothes were found on April 18. Here the killer deposited the clothes in the sewer. This part of the reconstruction is based on the assumption that the clothes were hidden on the night of the murder.

It is thought that the man continued noth on the road and turned left on one of the many roads that intersect the main road, which runs north and south. This left turn brought him to a cinder road used by workmen on the Arlington Memorial Bridge. He turned south on the cinder road, which brought him back to Cemetery road about 40 feet west of the culvert. Here he turned east and stopped alongside the culvert. He lifted the lifeless form from the seat and carried it down the side of the embankment and deposited it near the intake of the culvert.

GIVES WARNING

J. STERLING MORAN.

WARNING ON CENSUS IS ISSUED BY ROVER

U. S. Attorney Quotes Law Penalty Provided for Recalcitrants.

REPEATED CALLS MADE

Irked at the indifference, lack of cooperation and general laxity of many Washingtonians toward census enumerators in their work, now three-fourths completed, Census Director William M. Steuart and J. Sterling Moran, District supervisor, yesterday asked United States Attorney Leo A. Rover to issue a warning of penalties that face census law violators.

Form letters, signed by Mr. Rover, were sent last night to between 300 and 400 residents, calling attention to the law which provides penalties of $100 fine or 60 days in jail, or both, "for any person who shall refuse or willfully neglect to answer the census inquiries, or who shall willfully give answers that are false."

Form letters, signed also by the district attorney, were mailed to between 35 and 40 persons listed as owner, proprietor, manager, superintendent or agent of hotels, apartment houses, boarding or lodging houses, who have refused to furnish names of occupants of the structures, according to the announcement. Attention was called to the law providing a fine of not exceeding $500 for violation of this section.

"In many instances enumerators have made as many as 20 trips to one apartment or house to obtain information, and repeatedly have left blanks to be filled out, but residents have balked all attempts," declared Mr. Moran. "Managers or owners of various apartment houses have been derelict toward us, and in various boarding and lodging houses they were refused the names of occupants and told to try to get into rooms to question occupants. Something had to be done to round up many of these laggards by the close of the enumeration period on May 1."

Leader Declares Object Not Immediate Independence, but Remedy of Evils.

London, April 26 (Saturday), (A.P.). Dispatches from Lahore, India, to the Daily Mail this morning reported that fresh disorders had broken out on Friday at Peshawar, turbulent capital of the northwest frontier province.

A mob paraded the streets shouting revolutionary cries and taunting the troops on guard. A British officer, facing the ringleaders with drawn revolver, vainly tried to persuade them to disperse their followers.

An armored car was sent for and when it arrived and a machine gun was trained on the mob the Indians scattered.

The Daily Mail correspondent said that Indian agitators arrested in connection with the riot on Wednesday were being tried secretly and held under strong guard in a fort.

"Live Corpses" Exposed.

An attempt was apparently made to hoodwink British officials seeking to ascertain the number of persons killed on Wednesday, according to the correspondent, who said exaggerated figures had been submitted by the natives and that a long row of coffins alleged to contain the corpses of rioters had been put on display. The "corpses," when examined, proved to be very much alive.

The arrival of two companies of British infantry and two machine gun sections has created a feeling of security among the Europeans in Peshawar.

Signallers on the city walls are constantly on the alert and maintain communications with headquarters.

Sir Horatio Bolton, chief British commissioner, withdrew the troops from the city streets after a conference with the leading citizens of Peshawar, but kept strong guards posted at the gates.

Mob Injures Sixteen Police.

Calcutta, April 25 (A.P.).—A report received today said that sixteen policemen were injured last night at Neela, where salt was being manufactured, when a crowd of 2,000 persons pelted them with stones. The police fired on them with buckshot and injured three persons, who were sent to the hospital. Later another demonstrator was found dead on the ground where the disturbance occurred.

Bombay, April 25 (A.P.).—The atmosphere of India continued ominous today, with evacuation of all European women and children from Peshawar most serious feature of the situation.

Peshawar lies for up on the northwestern frontier, commanding the entrance to the famous Khyber Pass. The hills around it are the home of the most dangerous Indian tribes, chief among them being the Afridis and Mohmands, who are born fighting men. They are well armed and are a

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., April 25.—Richly robed in silks and laces befitting a reigning monarch, Miss Suzanne Pollard, daughter of Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia, rose in state today as "Queen Shenandoah VIII" at the head of a triumphal parade climaxing the seventh annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival. She was acclaimed by the largest gathering of people ever seen in the festival city. State and local police estimated the crowd close to 100,000.

Continued cold weather rendered it necessary for the queen to wear over her coronation gown a gorgeous white robe trimmed with ermine. Her crown was of platinum studded with diamonds. She carried the royal golden scepter. The queen's float, largest in the long line, was made to represent an immense sea shell, and was decorated with silver and white to represent waves of the sea. Sitting immediately in front of her majesty and on either side were her maids of honor, Misses Louise Baker Glass and Mary Virginia Steck, in white silk gowns, with arm bouquets of apple blossoms. Farther below were half a dozen children, dressed as pages and jesters. One dressed as a fairy held the golden apple.

The queen's special escort were the Veterans of Foreign Wars Band, drum and bugle corps, of Washington, D. C. Following the royal float were two containing half a hundred princesses from Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and District of Columbia, occupying seats built in tiers. The floats of white were trimmed in green and supported by

STATE TAKES OVER SMITH CO. OFFICES

$250,000 IN BONDS HELD

New York, April 25 (A.P.).—Richard J. Cornell, deputy assistant attorney general in charge of the State's investigation of the F. H. Smith Co., investment bankers, accused of using the mails to defraud, said today a check-up of the company's records and assets here probably would take several days.

Mr. Cornell took over the company's office here yesterday for the receivers and also obtained from the court orders of attachment tying up the bank accounts of the firm in the Bank of America's branch at Fortieth street and Madison avenue, and in the Harriman National Bank. A safe deposit box and a $250,000 deposit of bonds also were seized.

Action against the company began in Buffalo several months ago when the State asked for a receivership against the Fairfax Apartment Corporation, a subsidiary. The case goes to trial in that city next Tuesday.

A permanent injunction against the company, restraining it and its officers and employes from further sales of the $1,550,000 issue of 6½ per cent first and refunding bonds secured by the Fairfax Apartment Hotel, of Buffalo, was granted April 7 by Supreme Court Justice Samuel J. Harris, of Erie County, and subsequently George D. Crofts, Stanley A. Falk and Charles Hickey, of Buffalo, were named receivers.

Mr. Crofts and Mr. Falk appeared at the Bureau of Securities with the request that they be assisted in taking over the books and assets. They were accompanied to the company's offices by Deputy Attorney General William Millholland, Richard Cornell, accountant, and Sergt. Rotchford, of the State police.

Charges of Trickery Fly in Midst of Rivers and Harbors Debate.

HOOVER DISAPPROVAL EXPECTED BY MANY

$111,000,000, Twice That of Budget Estimate, Would Be Spent.

U. S. TO TAKE OVER ERIE CANAL BY ACT

Assaults on Provision Fail, but Retirement Clause Is Defeated.

(Associated Press.)

A $111,000,000 river and harbor improvement program was approved by the House yesterday in a wild, dramatic session that bristled with charges of deception, bribery and pork barrel legislation.

Even while the House was passing the bulky measure, the expectation gained credence that President Hoover would not approve appropriations of more than the $55,000,000 fixed by the budget bureau for such expenditures in the fiscal year 1931.

The projects in the measure are expected to be considered in three classes, as necessary and urgent, as necessary, but not urgent, and as projects which in time will become necessary. A study is being made to place them definitely in these three classifications, but it became known that the Erie Canal project was considered as belonging in the third class.

Passage Comes Late in Day.

Final passage of the omnibus bill, carrying authorization for about 154 projects and 346 surveys, came late in the day after supporters of the measure had turned back repeated assaults against its provisions, including that authorizing the Federal Government to take over the Erie-Oswego barge canal from New York State.

Heralded for days as the major point of controversy in the entire bill, this provision was retained by a vote of 148 to 59 in the face of a bitter onslaught by a determined group of members from Northwest States.

Pleading for support in their effort to strike out the provision, the Northwesterners branded the entire bill as "a pork barrel," and charged Chairman Dempsey, of the House rivers and harbors committee with "deception" for not providing more information concerning the demands likely to be made in the future for development of the barge canal.

Retirement Clause Killed.

This controversy had hardly subsided when Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, shouted an accusation of "bribery" in opening a successful fight for elimination of a provision to permit the assistant chief of Army engineers to retire as a major general.

Brig. Gen. Herbert Deakyne holds this post and passes on all river and harbor recommendations.

Mr. LaGuardia insisted such a provision did not belong in the bill, that the rivers and harbors committee was exceeding its authority, and finally shook his fist toward Chairman Dempsey and shouted: "That's not legislation. That's bribery."

Mr. Dempsey defended the provision with an explanation that it was intended to reward faithful and

WOMEN IN MAJORITY AT UNUSUAL HEARING

Legislators Are Told They Ought to Make Tour of Speak-Easies.

DRASTIC PROVISIONS POINTED OUT BY FOES

Antisaloon League Adherents Lead Fight to Place Act on Books.

For the first time since the city went dry, the opponents of prohibition got together and spoke out yesterday. Crowding the office of the Senate District committee, they denounced the Howell bill to place a drastic enforcement act on the local statute books, and when they had concluded there was every evidence that the bill was dead.

No more unusual gathering was ever seen at a Capitol hearing. Women were in the majority, women whose names stand out prominently in the social register. They outnumbered the men in the room four to one. There were grandmothers, matrons and debutantes, all pledged to a war on prohibition.

The witnesses were Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke and Miss Elizabeth C. Harris, representing the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform; Lee P. Warren, attorney for the Crusaders; Capt. William H. Stayton, of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment; Dr. H. C. MacAtee, of the District Medical Society; Rufus S. Lusk, of the Operative Builders Association, and John R. O'Neil, who said he represented himself and his ten children.

Tour of Speakeasies Urged.

Mr. Warren, attorney for the Crusaders, told the senators present that they owed it to the people to make a personal tour of the speakeasies in Washington, and he then proceeded to lambast three of the provisions in the Howell bill.

Under these provisions, a policeman could obtain a warrant to search a private home that had been visited by a bootlegger; a parent could be punished for giving a drink to a minor son or daughter, and physicians could be debarred from practice for violating the liquor prescription regulations twice.

Commenting on the provision aimed at the physicians, Mr. Warren wanted to know if there was anybody in the room who would not violate the law by giving a drink to a loved one if the latter might be helped by it.

"If there is," he said, "I wish they would stand up."

Four Leap to Feet.

Four men promptly jumped to their feet, one of them shouting that he wished his photograph might be taken at that moment.

The four were Dr. Andrew Wilson, president of the local chapter of the Antisaloon League; E. B. Dunford, general counsel of the Antisaloon League; Albert E. Shoemaker, another Antisaloon League lawyer, and Albert Stabler, an elder of the Friends Meeting House, the Quaker church on I street, which President Hoover attends.

Mr. Stabler, a venerable citizen with a white Van Dyke beard, evidently thought that Mr. Warren was talking about giving a drink to minors.

"If I ever give liquor to my children," he told a reporter, "you may hang me. Put that down."

Others Remain Seated.

HOOVER NOT TO MIX IN WET CAMPAIGNS

MORROW STAND IS CITED

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover will not intervene in the instances of Republicans running on a wet ticket this fall. He is not encouraging any of them to do so, neither is he discouraging them. It is a matter entirely within their own political conscience.

This is rather contrary to the prevailing view. In political circles Mr. Hoover has been accepted as a very dry President, and, consequently, it has been looked upon as an incongruity when a Republican announces as a wet. It has been said that this is the reason Secretary of Labor Davis does not announce as a wet in his Pennsylvania campaign for the Republican senatorial nomination.

It would seem incongruous, political observers have pointed out, for a member of Mr. Hoover's dry regime to espouse the wet cause. Of course, Mr. Davis' situation is rather an extreme one, but there is reason to believe that he has never received any intimation from Mr. Hoover that it would be embarrassing if he were to announce as a wet, and that, after all, the motivating influence in Mr. Davis' hesitation is more his indecision as to whether it would be the best political move than any serious fear that Mr. Hoover would not like it.

A more pointed case is the candidacy of Ambassador Morrow for the senatorship from New Jersey. Many observers at the first assumed that Mr. Morrow would run as a dry because being close to the administration he could not afford to do anything else. It so happens that Mr Morrow intends to run as nothing of the kind. His manager said several days ago that Mr. Morrow would run as a modificationist. Absurd, chorused the political observers. One that close to Mr. Hoover's administration could not run as a wet.

However, Mr. Morrow intends to run exactly as such and it is doubtful, extremely so, that the matter will ever be a subject of discussion between him and Mr. Hoover.

There is the case of former Senator Butler, of Massachusetts. He re-

Master Mourns Chinook, Who Vanished in Snow As Power Fell.

New York, April 25 (A.P.).—Arthur T. Walden, veteran of a thousand snowy trails, who went down to Antarctica as chief dog driver of the Byrd expedition, came home on the ice-scarred whaler C. A. Larsen today. Sixty-eight dogs came back with him—heroes, their job well done.

But Chinook, their undisputed king when they sailed from Norfolk a year and a half ago—Chinook, who always slept at the foot of his master's bed—was not among them, and Chinook's master will never return to Antarctica.

Standing on the top deck of the whaler, his handsome, shaggy charges frisking about him, the wiry little gray-haired Walden, who was driving dog teams in Alaska before the gold rush of '98, paid his tribute to Chinook.

As he finished he turned away and his keen blue eyes—so intensely blue

Will Hoover Sign Tariff Bill?

David Rankin Barbee has written for The Post tomorrow an article presenting the historical background of presidential actions on tariff measures. It is particularly timely in view of present-day speculation as to whether or not President Hoover will affix his signature to the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill which soon will be placed on the White House desk.

A few years ago and even today one hears about the "high cost of living." What about the "high cost of living" in terms of averages and index numbers? Read A. H. Ulm's article in the Sunday Post on the "high cost of living."

Drinking Reports on House Members Hidden at Quiz

Senate Lobby Quiz Ends as Data Is Excluded From Record.

(Associated Press.)

Concluding a seven-day examination of Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the Senate lobby committee announced yesterday that it would not inquire into confidential reports of the organization, which discuss the attitude of certain members of the House of Representatives toward prohibition.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, who made the announcement, said the reports were "so remotely connected with lobbying, if there was any connection at all, that the committee reached the conclusion that they ought not go into the record."

The reports were made by Carter Field, employed to make political surveys and recommend for or against support of candidates by the association. One of his reports, previously would break the law in an emergency, Mr. Warren sighed.

"The rest of us are all criminals," he said. "What a sad commentary on the prohibition law!"

Discussing the provision under which a policeman, seeing a bootlegger enter or leave a place, might obtain a warrant to raid that place, Mr. Warren said:

"If the man in the green hat should get out of jail and again visit the Senate Office Building, every office in that building would be suoject to search under this bill."

Mrs. Frederick Brooke told the committee that she was a grandmother. Therefore, she said, she was familiar with conditions as they existed before prohibition and conditions as they exist now. Conceding that conditions were bad in the days of the saloon, she declared that today they are worse. She cited what she said was a "perfect example" of the way prohibition works out. When she was a young girl, she said, she lived with her parents in an Army fort. In those days, the canteen sold beer. Then a regulation was promulgated to prohibit the sale of beer within the fort.

Hard Liquor Next Step.

The result, she said, was that speakeasies sprang up all around the fort, and the soldiers, who theretofore had been drinking beer, took to drinking hard liquor.

Senator Copeland (wet Democrat), of New York, declared that when he was in school the teaching of temperance was a part of the curriculum. Now, he said, schools and churches both seemed to have abandoned their temperance work.

"In those days," Senator Copeland said, "A boy who carried a flask was considered a bum. A girl who took a drink was ostracized. But now—well, something seems to have happened."

Mrs. Brooke expressed the opinion that the youngsters drink because there is fun in doing something which they have been told that they may not do.

"There is a sort of an adventure in it," she said, "even for grandmothers."

Robsion Cites Old Days.

Senator Robsion, dry Republican, of Kentucky, said that in the old days he had seen little children "rushing the growler" to saloons, and he also recalled that young men and women visited roadhouses to drink and dance. Before prohibition, he said, there were 20,000,000 drinkers, each consuming 150 gallons of liquor a year. Obviously, he said, this number has been reduced.

Senator Copeland could not agree with him. It was his conviction that every man who was drinking before prohibition is still drinking—that is, if he desires to. There is no scarcity of stuff to drink, the New Yorker declared.

Senator Robert B. Howell, dry Republican, of Nebraska, and the author of the enforcement bill, painted a dreary picture of the days before prohibition.

Speakeasies Then, Is Claim.

Even in those days, he said, there were speakeasies. And the houses of ill fame, he said, usually were backed by the brewers.

So far as the Senate District committee itself was concerned, the members in attendance yesterday were preponderately wet. Backing up the wet Senator Copeland were Senators Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, and Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin.

The only dry members present, aside from Senator Howell, who is not a member of the committee, were Chairman Capper (Republican), Kansas, and Senator Robsion.

If it comes to a vote on the bill and all the members in the city are present, there will be a tie. The drys have a majority of one, but one of their number, Senator King (Democrat), Utah, is in Europe.

Woman Tells of Society's Growth.

Miss Elizabeth Harris, representing the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, told the committee that the local chapter of that organization already has 1,200 members, although it was started only in April.

She opposed the bill for the same reasons that Mr. Warren opposed it. While she was in sympathy with the idea of making Washington a model city, she said, she did not feel that another drastic law would make it such. The model city, she said, should be one with sane laws, not a city where one drastic law is stressed above all others.

While she was denouncing the provision to punish an adult for giving a drink to a minor, Senator Howell interrupted to tell of a case that had been brought to his attention.

A man took a young girl to a local hotel, he said, and after plying her with liquor, tried to outrage her.

Tydings Answers Question.

"Ought we not to do something to that man?" Senator Howell said.

"Well, it probably wouldn't have happened before prohibition," said Senator Tydings.

"Oh, young girls were plied with liquor before prohibition," Howell retorted.

Miss Harris said that it was concern for the young girls of the land that had led her and other women to fight prohibition.

"Don't you think the eighteenth amendment ought to be enforced?" Senator Howell asked her.

"Yes," she replied, "but that doesn't stop a large number of people from agitating for its repeal."

Women Applaud Loudly.

The women in the room applauded this statement with gusto.

Dr. Henry C. McAtee, of the District Medical Society, told the committee that the provision in the Howell bill which would debar a physician if he violated the prescription law twice was nothing more than "class legislation."

Rufus S. Lusk, of the Operative Builders Association, had the same to say about a provision affecting the owners of buildings. Under this provision, the owner or real estate man in charge of a building could be fined or sent to jail if he knowingly permitted the building to harbor a speakeasy.

Capt. Stayton, of the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, suggested that the people of Washington be allowed to vote on the Howell bill, a suggestion that evoked little sympathy from Senators Robinson and Howell.

John R. O'Neil, the last witness, said that he was the father of ten children and was a lifelong teetotaler. Nevertheless, he said, he was opposed to the Howell bill.

"When a man gets drunk on alcohol," he said, "he eventually gets over it. But when a man gets drunk from power, he never gets over it. And that is why I am afraid of you drys."

The women applauded vociferously, including the matron over in the corner with a lorgnette.

COMMITTEE BACKS DRY UNIT TRANSFER

Attorney General to Have Free Hand in Selection of His Staff.

EXTRA JUDGES FAVORED

(Associated Press.)

Unanimously reporting the House bill for transfer of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Justice Department, the Senate judiciary committee yesterday urged upon the Senate a "free hand" for the Attorney General in administering the dry law.

The only change made in the Williamson bill as it was passed by the House was the removal of a provision for the transfer of employes and attorneys of the dry unit under Secretary Mellon to the Prohibition Bureau in the Justice Department. This was done, Chairman Norris explained, in order to give the Attorney General freedom in the selection of his staff.

At the same time, the judiciary committee reported favorably to the Senate measures authorizing four additional Federal judges, including one for the Southern District of New York and another for the Southern District of California.

Chairman Norris said the judges were to meet emergency situations and this particular legislation was not necessarily involved in the prohibition program. Other bills for the relief of court congestion are still pending. The judge bills would give an additional circuit judge for each of the Third and Fifth circuit districts.

Senator Hebert (Republican), Rhode Island, reported the transfer bill to the Senate and leaders intend to give it early right of way. With a unanimous report on it from the judiciary committee, little opposition is expected.

cently announced his candidacy for the Republican senatorial nomination as a dry. And there is the vague recollection that he either said or left the impression that the reason he announced as a dry was to uphold the administration. It may have been that this was the interpretation the political interpreters put upon his decision.

At any rate, the real reason Mr. Butler announced as a dry is because it is most difficult for a wet to get the Republican nomination in Massachusetts. Then it is more difficult, seemingly an impossibility this year, for a dry Republican to get elected.

President Hoover has incurred the dry characterization because he has gone further than any other President for law enforcement. Taking their enforcement cue from the head of the Government, some enforcement officials have shown zealousness which has in turn emphasized what has come to be called as the dryness of the present administration.

But, it is pointed out, Mr. Hoover has frequently said that any one against the eighteenth amendment has a perfect right to work for its repeal. There is ample freedom here, Republican leaders point out, for any Republican to run on a wet ticket.

Seven in Senate Race in Carolina

Fourth Republican Files for Primary; Democratic Trio Qualifies.

Charlotte, N. C., April 25 (A.P.).—United States District Attorney Irvin B. Tucker, of Whiteville, entered the race for the Republican nomination to the United States Senate from this State today by filing formal notice with the State board of elections a few hours before the legal period of filing closed at midnight.

Tucker brings to four the number of Republican senatorial candidates. The others are the Rev. Grady Dorsett, of Wake Forest; George E. Butler, of Clinton, and Representative George M. Pritchard, of Asheville. Three men are qualified to seek the Democratic nomination: United States Senator F. M. Simmons, Josiah W. Bailey and T. L. Estep, of Stratford, Alleghany County.

The latest entry in the Republican Senate list, Tucker, was Federal district attorney for Eastern North Carolina for eight years. He left office this year. He ran for lieutenant governor in 1920 on the Republican ticket with John J. Parker, of Charlotte, nominee for the Supreme Court, who ran for governor.

Rosenberg Withdraws Mrs. Kresge Balm Suit

New York, April 25 (A.P.).—Counsel for Michel Rosenberg, Parisian real estate operator, today withdrew his $500,000 suit against Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge, divorced wife of Sebastian S. Kresge, chain store operator, charging breach of promise to marry.

His attorney, George A. Hopkins, announced Rosenberge was sailing tonight for France, where Mrs. Kresge is living temporarily. Hopkins said he did not know whether there had been a reconciliation between his client and Mrs. Kresge, adding "he seemed quite happy, however, when he paid my fee."

REPORTS ON DRINKING HIDDEN AT HEARING

read into the record, recommended support of Gov. Ritchie of Maryland for reelection.

Committee members declined to comment on whether the records discussed drinking by some members of the House. Senator Walsh said, however, that they contained "strictures upon certain people."

The only intimation of their contents made public came from a portion of one which said an unnamed candidate for Congress "is a worse pussyfooter" than another unnamed congressional candidate.

"He drinks beer in speakeasies," the report said, "and points to his glass when asked where he stands, but will not say anything."

This excerpt was read into the record yesterday by Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, who said it was "just a sample."

He protested against placing the reports in the record, as proposed by Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, in the absence of a committee quorum to pass upon the matter. Robinson and Blaine were the only members present at the time. Robinson agreed to withhold action.

The committee yesterday questioned Curran about the expense accounts of Walter G. Hooke, "political agent" for the association, who was active last year in the New York and Illinois Legislatures against dry laws.

Senator Robinson said the records showed that Hooke had spent $4,427 last year and $1,789 during the first three months of 1930. Curran insisted that the money was spent "properly."

The committee adjourned until Tuesday when William H. Stayton, chairman of the board of the association, is expected to testify.

BETTER HOMES WEEK BEGINS

Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, planted a crabapple tree in the garden of the Girl Scouts' new home at Eighteenth street and New York avenue yesterday to mark the opening of the "better homes" celebration, which will continue through Tuesday.

SENATORS FORECAST DEFEAT OF PARKER

Republicans Ask Friends of Judge to Urge Him to Withdraw.

LABOR OPPOSITION GAINS

(Associated Press.)

Moves to attain the withdrawal of the nomination of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina, to the Supreme Court were initiated yesterday in the Senate after leaders reached the conclusion that his confirmation was most doubtful.

With debate on the nomination to open Monday, Senate chieftains were busy lining up their forces yesterday and at nightfall foes of Judge Parker claimed a victory and his friends conceded that they faced an uphill fight for his confirmation.

Some Republicans have advised President Hoover that confirmation of Judge Parker is doubtful, but there is no indication from the White House that Mr. Hoover will ask for the withdrawal. Hoping to avoid an open rupture in their party ranks, Republicans are importuning friends of Judge Parker to seek the withdrawal.

Parker Maintains His Position.

Friends of Judge Parker who called at the Capitol, passed the word that he was standing by his position and would not consider voluntary withdrawal.

A double attack faces the nominee from organized labor and the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People.

The labor opposition was renewed yesterday in an editorial issued by the American Federation of Labor News Service which said the Senate judiciary committee's recent refusal to approve the Parker nomination was sufficient to "silence reactionary elements that deny citizens the right to question such an appointment."

"Appointments like Parker's bring the judiciary into disrepute—not the citizens who object to such appointments," it said.

Cites Confidence in Judiciary.

"Confidence in our judiciary should be so deep-seated that citizens will rush to its defense. This is only possible when judges are without taint, whose qualifications are unquestioned and whose integrity and high regard for equal justice is unchallenged.

"How can a worker have faith in a judge who upholds an alleged contract that has been wrung from him because he neds work to feed and shelter dependents? To say that citizens shall not criticize such a judge is to mock American principles and to exalt the Fascist ideal."

Claudius Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, and David Mulvane, Republican national committeeman for Kansas, visited Senator Watson at the Capitol yesterday, but they insisted the visit was personal and related to party affairs.

Senator Thomas (Republican), Idaho, called late in the day at the White House. He said his call too was personal.

SCOUTS WILL MARK BETTER HOME WEEK

Mrs. Wilbur Plants Tree at Little House, Quarters of Girls' Organization.

ROCK GARDEN IS EXHIBIT

Looking as neat and pretty as a painted picture in a story book, the Girl Scouts' little house at 1750 New York avenue, national headquarters of Girl Scouts in the United States, is all prepared for the part it will play in Better Homes Week which begins next Monday.

Mrs. Lyman Ray Wilbur, wife of Secretary Wilbur, who is president of Better Homes Week, yesterday planted and dedicated a brand new crabapple tree in the front garden of the little house. Appropriate exercises in recognition of Better Homes Week will be held at the little house today, tomorrow and Monday. The house will be open to the public tomorrow afternoon, and all day Monday and Tuesday.

The attention of those visiting the Girl Scouts' home will be drawn particularly to the exterior and the garden. The exterior of the house is a replica of the home of John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home." Mrs. George Akerson, wife of the secretary to President Hoover, has developed a rock garden in the rear of the headquarters. The rock garden is designed to show the person with an average home how an attractive garden may be made in a small space.

Mrs. William Brown Meloney, editor of the New York Herald Tribune Magazine, and originator of Better Homes in America, will visit the home Tuesday afternoon. A short musical program will be presented at this time. Selected programs of music arranged by Mrs. Joseph Stoddard, president of the District Federation of Music Clubs, will be presented each day during Better Homes Week.

Man to Die in Chair On Burglary Count

Jury Finds Him Guilty of Capital Offense on First Ballot.

Winton, N. C., April 25 (A.P.).—Harvey Lawrence, 19-year-old Negro, was found guilty in Hertford County Superior Court today of first-degree burglary, a capital offense in this State. He was sentenced by Judge Garland E. Midyette, presiding, to die in the electric chair on July 25.

Lawrence was charged with entering the home of a prominent farmer, firing several shots and attempting to attack the farmer's wife. A detachment of State militia, a machine-gun unit from Wilson, stood guard outside the courthouse during the trial to keep order.

The trial started Wednesday, and the case reached the jury late today. Only one ballot was required to find the defendant guilty, it was announced. The jury was out twenty minutes.

STORIES OF PRISON FIRE ARE JUMBLED

Convicts Demand Quiz Into Blaze by U. S.; Ousting of Warden Sought.

DEATH TOLL NOW IS 320

Columbus, Ohio, April 25 (A.P.).—The open revolt of Ohio Penitentiary convicts opposed to the rule of Warden Preston E. Thomas simmered down to a peaceful state today and with everything quiet at the prison, Gov. Cooper's investigating committee completed its inquiry into the fire that claimed 320 lives.

Investigators finished their task after hearing conflicting testimony of five prison guards who were in G and H cell blocks after fire broke out in the roof last Monday night.

The guards gave a jumbled account of the rescue operations, but their testimony agreed on one point, that in the confusion there was considerable delay in opening cell doors and that the victims would have been saved by more prompt action.

Guard Hubert L. Richardson, stationed in the upper tiers of the damaged cell blocks, injected a startling issue when he testified that the cage door leading to the cells, the opening of which caused an argument among three guards, was never kept locked.

Locked Door After Fire Is Hinted.

Richardson left the inference that some one locked the door after the fire broke out and that the argument among other guards as to whether it should be opened again was the reason for the delay.

The committee will make a study of the reams of testimony taken from prison officials, firemen and fire survivors and hopes to have a report ready for Gov. Cooper not later than Monday.

It is expected the report will go into the cause of the fire, the adequacy of fire protection at the prison, and the committee conclusions on the handling of the serious situation that attended the inferno.

Unlike yesterday's hectic experiences when 3,000 prisoners in the idle house roamed about cell ranges threatening to kill guards and in general creating a wild state of disorder, all was calm and peaceful within the prison walls today.

"Passive Resistance" Continues.

But the "passive resistance" campaign against Warden Thomas, for whose removal there is a general hue and cry among the convicts, was by no means abandoned.

The organization conducting it was strengthened with the naming of convict committees and the announcement of rules and by-laws, which emphasized that there would be no vengeance or escape plot. One committee put in a demand for a Federal investigation of the fire, and the conduct of the prison. It was transmitted to penitentiary officials by guards.

Two more fatalities were added to the death list today, raising the total from 318 to 320. Scores of injured still were in the prison hospital, a number of them expected to die.

At 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, a solemn procession of hearses will move over the streets to East Lawn Cemetery, where a vast grave has been prepared to receive the unclaimed bodies of 40 white convicts.

Hope to Identify All Bodies.

The burials were scheduled for this afternoon, but were postponed in the hope that additional identifications might be established.

Men without families and with relatives who had forgotten them, will be laid to rest side by side in a great hole in the earth. On remembrance plates will be etched the identifications obtained from the charred fingers and from prison records. These will mark the spot where each is laid, where friends or loved ones may find them if they wish.

The bodies of ten identified, but unclaimed Negroes will be buried in Greenlawn Cemetery. They too will be provided with markers.

There still remained in the improvised morgue at the State Fair Grounds the bodies of more than 70 men, about twenty of them unidentified. Those that are unclaimed will be buried with the others at East Lawn and the unidentified will be held for a time in the hope that identification can be established.

Wife's Mate Held For Shooting Man

Virginian Wounded While Riding With Woman and Daughter.

Norfolk, Va., April 25 (A.P.).—While motoring this afternoon in company with a woman and her daughter, F. E. Keeter, 24, was shot in the left shoulder and seriously wounded, police said, by the husband and stepfather of the women with whom he was riding. The shooting was witnessed by a number of motorists.

Detective B. H. Dowe investigated the case and arrested Charles Wilson on a charge of shooting Keeter. According to the report made by Dowe, Keeter was driving in his roadster with Mrs. Bessie L. Wilson, aged about 40, and her daughter, Virginia Wilson, aged 20. All are Norfolk people.

Police stated Wilson drove up behind the roadster in his car and without warning began firing a pistol at Keeter.

FAVORABLE REPORT DUE ON AIRPORT BILL

Recommendation Indicated on Bingham Field by House Group.

LEGION OPPOSITION TOLD

The House Committee on public buildings and grounds will make a favorable report on the Bingham-Nelson bill to establish a municipal airport for Washington, it was indicated yesterday following a hearing on that measure.

The bill provides for a Federal loan to the District of $2,500,000, the money to be paid back gradually without interest. It would be used to establish an airport near the south end of Highway Bridge.

Senator Bingham (Republican) of Connecticut, and Representative Nelson (Republican) of Maine, members of the joint commission which drew up the bill, appeared beefores the committee yesterday to urge a favorable report.

Representative Underhill (Republican) of Massachusetts, another membee rof thee joint commission, said that, while hee favored the bill, a more economical coursee would be to let private interests operate the proposed airport under a guarantee that it would be kept open until a municipal port is developed at Gravelly Point.

Representative Stalker (Republican) of New York, urged that the Gravelly Point sitee be developed. This site, now a watery area below Highway Bridge, would have to be filled in.

Chairman Elliott read a petition from the American Legion opposing the Bingham-Nelson bill. The bill, it said, would establish the airport near Arlington Cemetery, and the noise from the planes would disturb memorial services there. Senator Bingham denied this.

Woman in Jersey To Run for Senate

Dry to Oppose Ambassador Dwight Morrow and Two Wet Candidates.

Haddonfield, N. J., April 25 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—The New Jersey Republican senatorial primary enrolled another candidate today—Miss Esther H. Elfreth, of Haddonfield, who will carry the standard of the prohibition forces.

Miss Elfreth will oppose former United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, insurgent; John A. Kelly, Independent, and Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Regular. Mr. Frelinghuysen and Mr. Kelly are running as wets. Although no announcement has come from Mr. Morrow, he is expected to be "moist," if not anti-prohibition.

Miss Elfreth's candidacy is a direct result of the bone drys' threat to put a candidate in the field if the others were wet. It was taken for granted that the drys expect Mr. Morrow's position to be unsatisfactory.

Decrease Is Seen In Unemployment

One Per Cent Decrease Is Reported by Head of Labor Group.

(Associated Press.)

Reporting a 1 per cent decrease in unemployment of organized wage earners from March to April, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said yesterday that wage earners "have been much slower in getting back to work than usual this year."

"Reports for March showed 21 per cent out of work, while in April only 20 per cent were out," he said, "this drop of only 1 per cent is a very small improvement fort he month of April.

"In 1929, unemployment decreased 2 per cent from March to April, and even in the unemployment crisis of 1928 the improvement from March to April was 2 per cent. At this time last year only 12 per cent of union members were out of work, and even in 1928 only 16 per cent were out."

SPEED ON VETERANS' RELIEF IS DEMANDED

Senators Call for Quick Action by Finance Committee.

HOUSE PASSES MEASURE

(Associated Press.)

Demands for quick action on the House bill to liberalize World War veterans' compensation were made in the Senate yesterday by Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, who threatened to move discharge of the finance committee if it did not quickly bring the measure to the floor.

One bill was passed Thursday by the House after more than twenty hours' debate. Senators Bratton, of New Mexico, and Ashurst, of Arizona (Democrats), joined in the call for early action by the Senate committee.

"I am not approving of all that is in that bill," Senator George declared, "but much veterans' legislation has been held back by the finance committee of the Senate without action, although repeated demand has been made for action from time to time as to many important measures."

Senator George is a member of the finance committee. He asserted that in the House action "we witnessed what probably we will witness more and more in the House, to wit: The House broke away from its masters and expressed itself in resentment against repressive measures and policies pursued by the leadership of the House."

The result, the Georgian added, was the measure "which probably is extreme in many respects," but which is nevertheless "simply the result of the repressive measures which are used in the House to prevent the consideration of legislation" fully and fairly.

Senator Bratton declared "there has been marked delay in the dispatch of veterans' legislation by the finance committee."

The bill was referred to that committee yesterday. Senators Bratton and Ashurst recalled that the committee had been "overworked" in recent weeks with its labors on the tariff and tax bills.

Jerked from the edge of the sidewalk, she fell against the curbing and her skull was fractured.

Lawing disclaimed any knowledge of the occurrence, but police said they had evidence he was in the car, which they asserted had been stolen in South Carolina. They are seeking another man believed to have been the driver of the automobile.

REDS, BANDITS SLAY THOUSANDS IN CHINA

Wholesale Looting Goes On and U. S. Missionaries Are in Jeopardy.

ENTIRE TOWNS SACKED

Shanghai, April 25 (A.P.).—Communistic and bandit armies today were reported looting, burning and slaying by wholesale in several provinces of China. Numerous missionaries were said to be in jeopardy, and thousands of Chinese were reported massacred.

Nationalist government officials, whose troops have been ineffective, offered rewards for the capture of Communists, who in turn offered prizes for the capture of foreigners, being quoted by missionaries as saying that "all foreigners should be killed." No deaths of foreigners, however, were reported.

Fresh from the bandit-scourged province of Kiangsi, Fathers Gately and Flaherty at Hongkong substantiated tales of depredations told by fellow priests, and gave no assurance of safety of sixteen American Catholic missionaries held in the city of Kanchow, besieged since early March by Red armies. Nothing has been heard from them since April 4.

A Red army, said dispatches from Hankow, had sacked the Town of Shinte, Hupeh province, and massacred 1,800 men, women and children. Two thousand farmers, it was said, who had been compelled to join the Communist army in that province, were killed by government troops in battle. Entire populations of nearby towns were evacuated to looters.

Transportation facilities in Shanghai were tied up in the foreign section by a strike of tramway and auto bus Chinese crews, who demanded increased pay and rice allowance. The authorities ascribed the strike to agents of communism, saying that it was but a part of the unprecedented disorders in various provinces.

Bandits and soldiers were reported battling in the coastal province of Chekiang. Routed by troops after a fight in which 300 bandits and 50 soldiers were slain, the bandits threatened to return and sack the Town of Szean, from which they had been driven.

The governor of Kiangshi province was reported to have tendered his resignation to the Nanking government, professing inability to cope with bandit and Red armies which for many months have looted and killed the populace.

Meeting at Chungking, province of Szechwan, military leaders offered a reward of $100 for every Communist captured.

PASTOR CONFESSES KILLING; WOMEN SOB

Preacher, on Stand, Denies He Intended to Slay Sexton in Fight Over Letter.

MESSAGE TO WIFE READ

Ottawa, Ill., April 25 (A.P.).—Sobs from the gallery—made up of women members of his congregation—mingled with his own today as the Rev. James A. Wilson, Methodist preacher, took the witness stand to admit shooting his church sexton and the sexton's child, but to deny intent to kill.

The minister described in detail the shooting, which took place when he and the sexton, Amos Elliott, and the sexton's wife, struggled for possession of a letter written by the minister to Mrs. Emma Wagner, a widow of his parish.

The letter, which the pastor said he sought to "get out of circulation," was read by him from the stand.

"Mrs. Wagner," it said, "this letter asks forgiveness. The matter has worried me more than anything else in my life. I have made a mistake—I wouldn't have been human if I had not and I won't be right with God until you forgive me.

"I have gone to Ch'cago to see a physician. While there I intended to end it all, but couldn't face my Maker without your forgiveness. I have meditated on the matter and have decided to ask your forgiveness.

"If you will give it to me I will be the happiest man in the world. If you do not, I don't know what will happen."

He wrote the letter, Mr. Wilson said, because he had offended Mrs. Wagner with criticism about keeping a roomer.

"Isn't it because she became angry with you after you asked her to lead a life of shame with you?" he was asked by a cross-examiner. He was not allowed to answer.

Inspector Cleared In Customs Probe

Frank Murphy Not Among Those Involved in Charges.

New York, April 25 (A.P.).—In a story reporting dismissal of two customs inspectors the Associated Press Wednesday erroneously identified them as William B. Hayes, of Weehawken, N. J., and Frank Murphy, of Brooklyn.

The men discharged as a result of the investigation growing out of attempts to smuggle narcotics into the country were William D. Murphy, of Brooklyn, and Frank L. Hayes. The story was furnished the Associated Press by a local news association.

Customs Inspector Frank Murphy, Brooklyn, is in no way implicated in the investiation of the customs service.

The Associated Press is glad to make this correction.

MRS. POST SLAYER, CORONER JURY SAYS

Art Colony Playhouse Dark After Former Friends Are Found Dead.

STAGE ENVOY IS BLAMED

Laguna Beach, Calif., April 25 (A.P.).—The little Community Playhouse of this seaside art colony was "dark" tonight, and those who would have been its patrons were in mourning because Jealousy, an unlisted member of the cast, stalked across the boards and turned into tragedy a drama that was intended to be the local season's outstanding comedy.

This tragic denouement was the death of the playhouse's two leading sponsors, Adele Ritchie, 56, famous as an actress a generation ago, and her one-time close friend, Mrs. Doris Murray Palmer, 32, recently of Chicago. Miss Ritchie was the divorced wife of Guy Bates Post, the actor. A coroner's jury late today decided, after an inquest, that Mrs. Post killed Mrs Palmer and herself.

The bodies of the two women were found in the bungalow of Mrs. Palmer yesterday. Investigations today disclosed that Mrs. Palmer had been shot twice, once in the head and again in the back, and that Miss Ritchie had been shot through the mouth, the bullet lodging in her brain.

Sheriff Sam Jernigan believes it was murder and suicide, due to the jealousy of Miss Ritchie at the success of her associate, which flamed up yesterday afternoon after Mrs. Palmer had received an invitation to a luncheon to which Miss Ritchie had not been invited.

Back of this lay a long series of incidents which first cemented and then sundered a close friendship. The friendship began with a mutual interest in the Community Playhouse. Until this year Miss Ritchie was director of the benefit. This year, however, the rising popularity of the former Chicago and Waukegan, Ill., woman brought to her the directorship of the play. Miss Ritchie went to rehearsals, but was reported by friends to have been a displeased onlooker. One acquaintance told authorities today she heard Miss Ritchie say at the dress rehearsal Wednesday night "I would like to shoot her."

Just what went on in the Palmer bungalow may never be known, but it is surmised that a stormy scene took place between the two women. It is supposed that Miss Ritchie who, despite her 56 years, was still attractive, resented the increasing popularity of her friend and that a quarrel ended in death.

In Honolulu, Mr. Post, divorced husband of the supposed slayer, expressed surprise and horror at the act and said he could not understand why his former wife could kill or would be killed by any one.

Others, who recalled the days when Adele Ritchie was the toast of Eastern theaters, remembered that she had a temper which often brought embarrassing moments to her friends and remorse to herself.

in his face reddened by nearly 40 years on the trails—were filled with tears.

"I'll never be half the man Chinook was," he said simply.

"It was January 17, a year ago, his twelfth birthday, that Chinook went away. The going was pretty hard down there, and, you see, Chinook was an old dog.

"The day before he went away three of the other dogs pitched on him and got him down. That was the first time Chinook had ever been off his feet in a fight in all his life. I guess he realized then that he was through.

"That night he said good-by to me. Three times in the night he woke me up, putting his paw on my face. He didn't whine or anything, but he seemed to be trying to tell me something.

"I didn't harness him the next morning, but, as I started down the trail, he followed me a little way. Then he just disappeared.

"One of the men said he saw him last, a long way off on the ice barrier, going away. That's the way they do, you know. When they realize they're through, they just go off by themselves and die. Chinook never came back.

"Chinook was the grandest lead dog I've ever seen. And he was more than a dog. I miss the old fellow more all the time. Very often at night I dream about him.

"Well, he didn't die in the harness. But he died with his boots on, and he was more of a man than I'll ever be."

Dogs Die in Battles.

With Walden on the C. A. Larsen were his two assistants, Norman D. Vaughan and Edward E. Goodale, both Harvard students. Vaughan's mother, Mrs. George C. Vaughan, of Hamilton, Mass., and Goodale's father, Dr. Joseph L. Goodale, of Boston, were among those who went out on a tug to the C. A. Larsen after she had anchored off Staten Island.

Five other members of the expedition also were aboard, Martin Ronne, 69, sailmaker and tailor, who was the oldest man on the expedition; Clair D. Alexander, supply officer; George Black and Walter Leuthner, seamen; and Dr. Vacloo Vojtech, Czechoslovakian geologist.

Stowed away down in the hold, under Dr. Vojtech's charge, were a flock of the solemn penguins, who were the explorers' neighbors on the Ross ice barrier.

All over the ship—some in crates, some of them chained, and many of them running about loose—were the dogs. Well-mannered dogs, these, who will shake hands with a stranger, but toward each other, they are not so friendly.

"After Chinook went away," said Walden, "they fought for days to decide who was to be their new leader. Six were killed."

Even Penguins Are Cold.

In addition to the 68 dogs who helped pull the supplies over the icy wastes of Antarctica, there were seven woolly, clumsy pups aboard the C. A. Larsen. They arrived during the 40-day journey up here.

Thirty of the grown dogs and five of the pups belong to Walden. Mrs. Walden, who came down to meet her husband, said they would move them all up to their kennels at Wonalancet, N. H., as soon as possible. The rest of the dogs belong to members of the expedition.

Half beside themselves with excitement at getting home and seeing their friends and relatives, most of the men who returned today had little to say about Antarctica. Walden did most of the talking. His remarks about Antarctica were not flattering.

"It's the lonesomest place in the world," he said. "Nothing but ice—ice, no vegetation, not a living thing except penguins, and even the penguins go away and leave you.

"I'll never go back there, but before I pass out—I'll be 59 next month—I want to hit the trail a couple of times back up in Alaska, and when I die, if I go to Heaven, I expect I'll be hauled in by a dog team."

perpetual embarrassment to the British.

These tribes have no direct connection with the civil disobedience movement of Mahatma Gandhi, but they have always been ready to take advantage of any difficulties facing the British. Thus the fear here is that the whole frontier may blaze—possibly on the Afghan side as well as the British—and Peshawar itself may be threatened.

Arsenal Raiders Vanish.

No definite news was received from Peshawar today, but censorship is understood to be in operation and developments are awaited with considerable anxiety by Europeans.

As another feature of the news disturbing to officials, no trace has been found of the survivors of the insurgents who attacked an arsenal at Chittagong Saturday. A few of the insurgents have been killed or wounded, but the others are eluding pursuers in the hills.

An independent police force of 100 was dispatched today from Tippera to Bilonia, a subdivision of the independent State of Tripura, to join the hunt.

Additional national leaders were arrested today, among them being Sri Prakash, general secretary of the national congress, who was charged at Benares with manufacturing salt illegally.

On hearing of the resignation of V. J. Patel, speaker of the legislative assembly, a group from the congress at Simla arranged a meeting with him and was given this message by Patel:

Gandhi Assails Police.

"Dicard foreign cloth and wear khaddar (homespun) and pray for the success of the congress movement."

Mahatma Gandhi is still in the Gujerat district. Addressing a group of salt volunteers today at Panar, the leader attacked treatment by the police.

"Police are not empowered to beat you, even under the salt act," he said. "They can take possession of the salt, but not by beating you. Although I am a barrister, my knowledge of law has become rusty, but still I could secure the release of every one of those arrested if I were to plead in a court of law."

One of the latest acts of Gandhi has been to send five specially chosen volunteers to Karachi to replace civil disobedience leaders who have been imprisoned there.

(Copyright, by the Associated Press, 1930.)

"Navsari, India, April 25 (A.P.).—India's Nationalist leader, Mohandas Karachand Gandhi, today gave to the Associated Press from his temporary headquarters, where he is leading the civil disobedience campaign against the Indian government, a definitive statement embodying the present aims and grievances of Nationalist India.

The statement was, in part, as follows:

"The national demand is not for the immediate establishment of independence, but as a preliminary step to a conference that must take place if independence is to be established peacefully and to remove certain prime grievances, chiefly economic and moral.

"Those grievances include the salt tax, which in its incidence falls with equal pressure upon the rich as well as poor and is over 1,000 per cent of the cost price, having been made a monopoly. It has deprived tens of thousands of people of their supplementary occupation and the artificially heavy cost of salt has made it very difficult, if not impossible, for poor people to give enough salt to their cattle and to their land. This unnatural monopoly is sustained by laws which are only so called, but which are a denial of law.

"Civil resistance against the salt laws has caught the popular imagination as nothing else has within my experience. Hundreds of thousands of people, including women and children from many villages, have participated in the open manufacture and sale of contraband salt. This resistance has been answered by barbarous and unmanly repression.

"Instead of arresting people, the authorities have violated the persons of people who have refused to part with salt held generally in their fists. To open their fists, their knuckles have been broken, their necks have been pressed. Some of these assaults have taken place in the presence of hundreds and thousands of people, who, although well able to protect the victims and retaliate, being under a pledge of nonviolence, have not done so.

Foreign Cloth Boycott.

"That this is a movement of self-purification is abundantly proved by the fact that women have come into it in large numbers and are organizing the picketing of liquor shops. Thousands have taken vows to abstain from intoxicating liquor. A similar manifestation is taking up the question of the boycott of foreign cloth. It is spreading all over India. People are making bonfires of the foreign cloth in their possession. Khadi, namely handspun cloth, is so much in demand that the existing stock is well-nigh exhausted. Each spinning wheel is much in demand and people are beginning to realize more and more the necessity of reviving hand spinning in the cottages of the 700,000 villages of India.

"In my humble opinion a struggle so free from violence has a message far beyond the borders of India. I have no manner of doubt that after all the sacrifice that has already been made since the sixth of April, the spirit of the people will be sustained throughout until India has become independent and free to make her contribution to the progress of humanity."

Wales Ends African Trip at Home in Plane

Windsor, England, April 25 (A.P.). The Prince of Wales, home from his African hunting trip, landed on Smith's Lawn in the Windsor Great Park today, making a perfect landing.

The plane came down close to the prince's new country residence, Fort Belvedere, at Sunningdale. The Duke of York and Prince George were waiting to greet their elder brother. They drove to the prince's country house where King George and Queen Mary welcomed him home.

Cashier Kidnaped by Thieves.

Danville, Ill., April 25 (A.P.).—Two men kidnaped H. E. Watkins, the cashier of the First State & Trust Bank at Indianola today, drove his wife to a back room, stole $2,000 and drove away. Watkins was dumped out of the car, which tallies with one stolen from Dr. O. E. Fink last night.

On the Rules of Traffic
By WILLIAM ULLMAN

The light delivery car driver often apparently does not know the law governing speeds for this type of vehicle.

He thinks that he is allowed the same speed as the private car. But he is not. A special provision of the traffic regulations limits the speed of these cars to 18 miles an hour. That goes for the 30-mile speed zones as well as those where the limit is 22 miles.

Example: A light delivery vehicle driver was arrested for speeding. He told the judge he was "only doing 26 in a 30-mile zone." The judge countered with the remark that "that was 8 miles too fast."

HARRIS' QUOTA BILL SENT TO COMMITTEE

Immigration Measure Is Doomed for Session by Senate Action.

WRANGLE HALTS VOTE

(Associated Press.)

After two weeks of debate and a score of roll calls, the Senate yesterday returned to committee the Harris bill proposing to place quota restrictions on immigration from Central and South America.

The vote, which was 34 to 30, killed the legislation for this session, in the opinion of leaders, and leaves the present immigration policy of the United States unchanged.

Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, moved to recommit the bill by Senator Harris (Democrat), Georgia, to the immigration committee after the Senate became tangled over the basis for restriction of European immigration.

Consequently, European countries will be limited hereafter to 150,000 immigrants annually into this country, allotted among various countries on the basis of the newly established national origins provision. No restrictions will apply to nations of this hemisphere.

After striking from the bill the amendment by Senator Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, to repeal the national origins basis, the Senate found it had two different provisions for European restriction. One would have cut European migration to 82,000 annually on the basis of 1 per cent of the foreign population here in 1890. The other would have allowed 150,000 annually as provided by national origins.

Senator Harris proposed to restrict immigration from Europe to the 82,000 figure and allot it on the basis of national origins. There was a long wrangle over this. It was voted down without a roll call and then Mr. Shipstead moved to send the measure back to committee.

HERBERT FAHY HURT IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Detroit with his wife two days ago to attempt to sell Mr. Durant a plane.

Herbert J. Fahy, who crashed yesterday, is a native Washingtonian and made his home in this city with relatives until June, 1928, when he resigned the post of chief pilot at the Washington airport, which he had held since organization of the firm.

His relatives here include his mother, Mrs. Bertha A. Fahy, a sister, Miss Margaret Fahy, and a brother, Francis Fahy, who reside at 4601 Ninth street northwest.

Mr. Fahy is one of the best-known fliers in the Nation, and gained fame last May when he established a world's solo endurance flight record of 36 hours 56 minutes and 36 seconds at Los Angeles, Calif.

He served as a lieutenant in the Aviation Corps during the World War, but failed to see active service in France, although flying at virtually every Army field in the Nation. Resigning later, he entered the commercial field here and, with companions, cleared land on the banks of the Potomac River across from Washington for the first field here offering passengers hops.

He participated in various barnstorming air tours, and had made more than a half dozen transcontinental flights.

His wife also is an experienced licensed pilot and last November was named by the city of Los Angeles as official city hostess to visiting women fliers. She also was an entrant in the women's air derby during the national air races last fall in Cleveland, but withdrew when several wires of her plane snapped.

efficient service, and that the fact that Gen. Deakyne did not have final jurisdiction over river and harbor recommendations was evidence of the committee's honest intentions.

The provision was finally stricken out by a vote of 112 to 89.

More Important Projects.

As finally sent to the Senate, the more important projects in the House bill included $29,266,400 for deepening the channels in the Great Lakes; $180,000 for starting development of a 27-foot channel on the St. Lawrence River between Lake Ontario and Ogdensburg, N. Y.; $7,500,000 for completion of the Illinois Waterway; $15,000,000 for the Missouri River between Kansas City and Sioux City; $4,066,000 for the Caloosahatchee River and Lake Okeechobee drainage areas in Florida; $5,277,000 for the Cape Fear River to St. Johns River, Fla., Inland Waterway, and $3,058,000 for the Mississippi River, between the Missouri River and Minneapolis.

The following Virginia and Maryland projects were approved:

Little Machipongo River, Virginia, $10,000; Wicomico River, Maryland, $75,000; Baltimore Harbor and channels, Maryland, $2,504,640; Herring Bay and Rock Hole Creek, Maryland, $6,300; waterway connecting Tangier Sound with Chesapeake Bay, Maryland, $12,000; Choptank River, Maryland, $6,300; Elk River, Maryland, $7,500.

Occohannock Creek, Virginia, $2,000; Nandua Creek, Virginia, $6,000; Monroe Bay and Creek, Virginia, $15,200; Cockrells Creek, Virginia, $59,000; Carters Creek, Virginia, $8,050; Nansemond River, Virginia, $92,300; Scotts Creek, Virginia, $31,000; inland waterway from Norfolk, Va., to Beaufort, N. C., inlet, $400,000.

BAKER SLAYER HUNT PRESSED IN VILLAGE

Rendezvous of Questionable Characters Combed for Girl's Murderer.

THIEF THEORY ACCEPTED

Why he did not conceal the body entirely from view is still puzzling detectives.

Familiar With Territory.

When he reentered the automobile, it is thought that he then drove east toward Military road, where the car was abandoned.

All colored men who have lived in that vicinity for a period of time are being checked by police. It is evident from the manner in which the crime was committed that the killer was familiar with every foot of the territory in which the killing occurred.

Activities in the search yesterday centered about the personal effects of the slain girl and the manner in which they were placed in a sewer on the Experimental Farm.

Considerable doubt has arisen in the minds of investigators regarding the time at which the articles were hidden and which of the many catch basins on the farm held the vital clews.

Farm Gone Over Thoroughly.

In an effort to establish this point definitely Detective John Flaherty and a Department of Justice agent visited the farm yesterday afternoon and surveyed the whole area. Detective Flaherty is anxious to learn whether the trinkets, which were stolen from parked automobiles, were found wrapped in Miss Baker's coat or were apart from the coat.

Two men who saw the articles taken from the sewer were questioned by Detective Flaherty. The men are at odds with each other regarding the exact sewer in which the coat and other things were found.

In an attempt to answer the question, police have offered immunity to the thieves who stole the coral necklace, a novel and other jewelry from the parked automobile, if they will only say whether they put the loot in the sewer.

Once this point is determined, police are confident that many other mystifying parts of the case will be cleared in sequence.

Day of Placing Important.

What is regarded as equally important is the day on which the stolen articles were placed. In the hope that some clew would be found to decide this point, the investigators yesterday carefully examined all the articles taken from the basin, but nothing definite was learned.

It was evident yesterday that police are now concentrating on the new facts which are now established. More detailed study was given to the established facts in the hope that they might yield something tangible from which to proceed.

All the investigators are agreed that the Baker murder case presents some of the most intricate problems in detection ever met in criminal annals. No matter which angle they have attempted to develop their pursuit has always led them through a maze of contradictory circumstance and has invariably ended in a cul-de-sac.

War Veteran Visited.

Detective John Fowler yesterday visited a World War veteran, now under mental observation at Gallinger Hospital. Policeman Edward W. Daniels, of the Fourth Precinct, notified headquarters that the war veteran was known to Miss Baker. Fowler interviewed the man, but nothing of consequence developed.

Early in the day Lieut. Edward J. Kelly and Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth visited a clairvoyant in northeast Washington, who was said to have foretold that Miss Baker would be murdered by a married man. Lieut. Kelly learned that the soothsayer did not know Miss Baker.

Police are checking the report of Herman Zeaman, a watchman employed on the experimental farm, that he saw three women parked in a machine on the farm on the night of the murder Mr. Gloth last night said that no report of this witness had been received by him.

Kelly Ordered to Rest.

Lieut. Kelly, who has worked almost unceasingly on the case for the past two weeks, yesterday was ordered to rest by Inspector Shelby. Later Inspector Shelby said that Kelly had devoted practically all his time to the solution of the crime and had been resting only a few hours each day. During the past two weeks, he said, Lieut. Kelly, in addition to working on the Baker murder, had played a large part in solving the killing of Lamar W. York, slain prohibition agent.

Since scarcely anything of importance has developed from their investigation police are giving more attention now to the numerous letters which have accumulated at headquarters offering "tips" regarding the killer.

Many are the works of cranks, but none has been ignored by police lest a valuable clew be lost.

Flames Rout 300 Girls; Menace Firemen's Lives

Buffalo, N. Y., April 25 (A.P.).—Fire in the basement of a downtown office building here at noon today sent 300 girls swarming down fire escapes and stairways to the street; nearly cost the lives of a battalion fire chief and a score of firemen, and caused damage estimated at $50,000.

Battalion Chief Walter Mahoney, fighting his way through the smoke-filled basement with a squad of men, collapsed when the party was trapped by a back-draft of smoke and flames and was saved by his men, who crawled under the flames to the stairs, dragging Mahoney with them.

SENATE.

Met at 12 noon and recessed at 3:20 p. m. to 12 noon Monday.

By a vote of 34 to 30, returned to committee the Harris bill proposing to place quota restrictions on immigration from Central and South American countries.

Judiciary committee favorably reported the House bill for transfer of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice.

Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, demanded quick action on the House bill to liberalize World War veterans' compensations.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, a member of the lobby committee, announced that the committee would not inquire into the confidential reports of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which discuss the attitude of certain members of the House toward prohibition.

Appropriations committee approved the War Department appropriation bill, carrying a net increase of $52,478 over the $456,243,386 measure passed by the House. Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, revealed additional statistics which, he said, showed the deplorable effects of prohibition.

Judiciary committee favorably reported bills authorizing an additional Federal judge for the Southern District of New York and for the Southern District of California.

Senator Kean (Republican), New Jersey, introduced a bill to reimburse the owners of the steamship Martha Washington for seizure during the World War.

HOUSE.

Met at 12 noon and adjourned at 6:05 to 12 noon Monday.

Passed, without a record vote, and sent to the Senate the $111,000,000 omnibus rivers and harbors bill, after a motion to send the measure back to committee had been rejected.

George F. Rand, president of the Marine Midland Corporation, of Buffalo, ascribed, before the banking committee, changing business conditions as the reason for the maintenance of a bank in New York City by the corporation.

Representatives of departments that would be affected by the Law Enforcement Commission's proposal for a unified border patrol service as a means of checking rum smuggling across the Mexican and Canadian boundaries, indorsed the plan before the interstate commerce committee.

Representative Campbell (Republican), Pennsylvania, introduced a resolution asking the creation of a special congressional committee to cooperate with any organization or society in arranging to commemorate the end of the whisky insurrection in Pennsylvania in 1794.

move by authorities as an aftermath of the return of indictments by the December grand jury here against several officials of the firm on charges of using the mails to defraud. Shortly afterward, the company moved its headquarters from Washington to New York City.

The officials indicted were Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, chairman of the House District committee; Daniel R. Crissinger, G. Bryan Pitts, Samuel J. Henry, John H. Edwards, jr., and C. Elbert Anadale. Henry C. Maddux, associated with the Hamilton Hotel Corporation, was indicted on the same charge with this group.

Pitts early this month was indicted again for alleged embezzlement of more than a million dollars of the F. H. Smith & Co.'s funds. CAPONE PROTECTED BY PERMANENT WRIT

Florida Judge Holds Governor Has No Right to Molest Racket King.

GRAND JURY DENOUNCES

Miami, Fla., April 25 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter today made permanent the temporary injunction he issued March 22, forbidding 20 Florida sheriffs from carrying out an order of Gov. Doyle Carlton to arrest Alphonse Capone on sight and escort him to the State line.

Capone and his attorney, J. F. Gordon, were the only witnesses at a hearing in Federal court. At the conclusion of testimony, Judge Ritter read a written opinion, stressing freedom of citizens of the United States and of Florida unless restrained by due process of law.

After ordering the injunction made permanent, Judge Ritter called Capone to the bench and urged him to take advantage of his privileges as a citizen of the United States in lawful exercise of his faculties.

The courtroom was crowded. None of the 20 sheriffs named in the order appeared during the hearing.

Examined by Vincent C. Giblin, one of his attorneys, Capone testified he paid $40,000 for the Palm Island residence in the summer of 1928 and since then has spent $100,000 improving it.

Denies Illegal Activity.

"I live there with my wife, my son, my mother, and my brothers, Albert and John," he said.

"Are you charged with any crime at this time?" he was asked.

"No," was his reply.

Judge Ritter asked Capone his purpose in coming to Florida.

"To live with my family, the same as any one else," he answered.

"Are you operating any business here in violation of the law?" the judge continued.

"No, sir."

"Are you bringing any persons down here who intend to violate the law or who would disturb the peace?"

"No, sir."

Under questioning from Giblin, the Chicago racketeer testified that Miami Beach police officers have been continually on guard at the grilled iron gates of his home since his arrival here from Chicago Sunday.

In announcing his decision, Judge Ritter said:

"There can be found no law anywhere which clothes the Governor of the State of Florida, or the sheriffs who are defendants, with power to arbitrarily declare that a person can be apprehended without process, held in restraint of his liberty without an opportunity to be heard, transported against his wish to the boundary line of the State, and thereby, from fear, being prohibited from, at any time, entering the State.

Denounced by Grand Jury.

"The Governor of the State of Florida has no power to issue such an order or request, requiring obedience. It is no more than an expression of his feeling against the plaintiff, and does not in any way constitute due process of law."

The Dade County grand jury, in a report made public today, denounced Capone, "his accomplices and their sinister influences," and the general crime situation in the county.

The report was returned while Capone was sitting in a Federal courtroom hearing Judge Ritter make permanent his temporary injunction.

The report of the jurors read:

"We indorse, commend and urge all legitimate efforts to exterminate from this community what clearly appears to be a cancerous growth of organized crime. The efforts of Vernon Hawthorne, State attorney, now being directed toward what is nationally recognized as a menace, a public imposter and an enemy to organized government are of paramount importance in this community. We urge all law-abiding citizens to give their unstinted cooperation and support to all legitimate means to accomplish the end that Scarface Al Capone, his accomplices and their sinister influences shall not continue to be inflicted upon the law-abiding residents or visitors to Florida."

Banking Commissioner Indicted in Kentucky

Frankfort, Ky., April 25 (A.P.).—O. S. Denny, State banking commissioner, today was indicted by the Franklin County grand jury on two counts of "failure to take charge of a bank promptly and effectively after having knowledge of the bank's insolvency or unsafe condition."

The indictment resulted from his handling of the affairs of the Hargis State Bank, at Jackson, Ky., and the Bank of Grayson, at Grayson, Ky., which failed recently.

State Police at Prison Urged in West Virginia

Moundsville, W. Va., April 25 (A.P.).—Dr. C. E. Hutchinson, member of the State Legislature, said today he would recommend to Gov. William G. Conley that a detail of State police be kept in the State Penitentiary here. He said the guard at the prison was entirely inadequate in case of any serious outbreak.

Dr. Hutchinson said he believed it advisable to have the headquarters of the troopers moved from Wheeling to the prison, where they would be housed.

Division of Radio Time Stayed by Injunction

The Federal Radio Commission is restrained until May 3 from putting into effect an order of the commission requiring Station WHAM, operated by the Stromberg-Carlson Telephone Manufacturing Co., near Rochester, N. Y., to divide the time of its 1150 kilocycles channel with Station KTNT, operated by Norman Baker, at Muscatine, Iowa, under a preliminary injunction signed yesterday by Justice William Hitz in District Supreme Court.

The Stromberg-Carlson Company charges that its business will be damaged considerably if the order to divide the time be carried out. In addition the company charges, through Attorneys William J. Donovan, Bethuel M. Webster, jr., and Paul M. Segal, that no notice of the change had been given them.

GRAND OPERA ENDS EXCELLENT SEASON

Lucrezia Bori and Lawrence Tibbett Are Stars of "La Traviata."

OVATION IS GIVEN PAIR

Lucrezia Bori and Lawrence Tibbett, two star children of grand opera, played vocal battledore and shuttlecock for first honors in Verdi's "La Traviata" at the Fox Theater yesterday afternoon in the last of a series of brilliant presentations by the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company of New York.

It was a toss-up, as to which singer was the winner in the scintillating conflict of vocal pyrotechnics. Both retired, under thunderous ovations and new-won laurels from the grand opera arena at the conclusion of what has been, if brief, the most outstanding operatic season of grand opera in the history of music in Washington.

Beginning with Wednesday's performance of "La Boheme," which opened the series of operas in the National Capital came at last into its operatic own, with a superb setting available in the theater, a master aggregation of stars to sing the classic roles, and a notable group of citizens in patronage and support.

Sung in Italian.

Like the other operas sung by the Metropolitan Company here this year, yesterday's opera was sung in Italian. Therefore, all the beauty of the libretto was preserved and the "liquid latin" of the Italian contributed much to the vocal excellence.

Much rejoicing was expressed over the announcement that the Metropolitan Opera Company will come to Washington again next spring, due to the good offices of Mrs. Wilson Greene, the impressario from whose management comes much of its success here and of the Washington Opera Association, Inc., Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, president, from whose public-spirited efforts the necessary support has been rallied for the Metropolitan presentations. It is presumed that the Fox Theater will be the scene of the Metropolitan Opera Company's appearance next year, as it has been proven conclusively that it is the one place in Washington where grand opera can be given with the greatest degree of satisfaction.

Ever a favorite with opera goers, "La Traviata" attracted a large audience yesterday, although not of the size of the two evening performances. The familiar arias, duets and choruses were enriched by the Metropolitan tradition.

Lucrezia Bori Stars.

Lucrezia Bori was as captivating as "Violetta" as she had been as "Mimi" on Wednesday night in La Boheme. The rest of one day between her performances had been beneficial for her and there was a freshness and vivacity about both her singing and acting which were delightful. She encompassed all the difficulties of the great coloratura aria belonging to her, in the first act, "The One of Whom I Dreamed," with ease, and its brilliant vocal display passages were sung with exactitude. In her duet with Alfredo, sung in a masterly manner by Armand Tokatyan, the prima donna sustained her full share of that beautiful "Rapturous Moment" as the duet is named.

Her dramatic powers and emotional heights were given full opportunity in "La Traviata" and Tokatyan as Alfredo, played and sang opposite her with skill, sweetness and insistent excellence both vocally and histrionically. The good impression produced by his star began with his part in the rollicking "A Bumper We'll Drink" sung with Violetta and chorus at the very opening of the opera. Patti, Galli Curci, Nellie Melba, other great Violettas of yesterday, had a worthy successor in Bori.

Tibbet Receives Ovation.

It was as Georgio Germont, the father of Alfredo, that Lawrence Tibbett lived up to the operatic tradition that this role is always taken by a great star. That this was true yesterday was attested when the audience gave spontaneous and continuous applause for some minutes to Tibbett after his inspired singing of the ever lovely "Di Provenza il Mar." In introducing the other principals their well-earned applause should be presented Phradie Wells as Flora Bervoix, Philine Falco as Annina, Giorgio Paltrinieri as Gastone, Alfredo Gandolfi as Baron Douphol, Millo Picco as Marquis D'Obigny and Paolo Ananian acceptably played the role of Dr. Grenvil.

New delights of the ballet were revealed in the ballet divertissement in the third act by Rita De Leporte and corps de ballet. Mlle De Leporte was Terpsichore's reincarnation, as she led her dancers in the mazes of unique figures. The ensemble and chorus were of Metropolitan rank, which is a column of praise in itself.

Costuming Was Excellent.

"La Traviata" is an opera which required rich setting and costuming. In this need, as usual, the Metropolitan was fully adequate, and the stage setting was a fitting complement of singers and stars of the opera.

Vincenzo Bellezza was the conductor of the opera, leading the orchestral part of the score with infinite efficacy and skill, thus giving the final touch of perfection to the production.

So passed the Metropolitan Opera Company for the season 1930, leaving behind it precious memories of grand opera at its best and high hopes for its return in 1931.

100,000 SEE QUEEN'S PARADE AT APPLE BLOSSOM FETE

gilt colonial columns, the capitals of which were decorated with pink and green flowers. The princesses wore peach-colored dresses and hats of eggshell braid.

Twenty-three bands and eleven bugle and drum corps marched in the parade, which required two hours to pass. More than 100 units composed the five grand divisions, with James R. Dushane as director and Maj. Lewis M. Allen, grand marshal. Divisional marshals were Capt. Edward C. Goss, Lieut. S. W. A. Baker, Grover H. Slack, Lawrence C. Hollis, Alva C. Richards, Paul Hartman, Roy Cather, Edmund Lupton, M. Cherry Lupton, W. R. Legge, Wendell B. Goode, Harry W. Butler and Russell Hook.

Headed by the United States Navy Band, Lieut. Charles Benter, director, the first division consisted of officials of the festival, including Nelson F. Richards, director general; William E. Cooper, executive chairman, and committeemen in automobiles, and American Legion posts from Baltimore, Cumberland, Frostburg, Hagerstown, Md.; Washington, D. C., and Alexandria and Arlington, Va. In the second section were cars containing distinguished visitors, including Gov. Hardman of Georgia, Gov. Pollard of Virginia, former Gov. Byrd of Virginia, Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, U. S. A.; Dr. J. Howard Gore, university professor and scientist.

Following the queen and princess floats and escorts in the third section were military academy cadet corps from Woodstock, Front Royal and Fort Defiance, Va. The Harrisonburg State Teachers College, with 800 girls dressed in colonial costumes of pink, with white pantalettes and carrying small parasols, marched with an artistic float, escorted by the Greenbrier Military School Band, Lewisburg, W. Va.

At the head of the second division, they were followed by numerous bands, drum and bugle corps and floats representing civic clubs, financial institutions, manufacturing and apple by-product concerns. Shenandoah National Park, Shenadoah Valley, Inc., and also President Hoover's summer camp in Madison County, Va., with an impersonation of Mr. Hoover angling for trout.

Arriving at the Winchester Fair Grounds, the queen and her princesses were escorted from their floats to royal boxes elaborately decorated, from which they reviewed the procession as it passed around the race course and out another gate to disband.

Except for intervals of sunshine, the day was overcast, with raw, chilling winds sweeping down from the northwest, as on yesterday. Practically all the thousands of spectators were equipped with heavy topcoats, while many girls riding on floats braved the chill weather in flimsy attire.

During the forenoon "Queen Shenandoah VII" and her court made a pilgrimage to the great commercial apple orchards of Frederick County, and were photographed by news and motion picture cameramen as they stood among the trees and blossoms. Her majesty was the special guest at a luncheon in the early afternoon, and she was the central figure at a reception immediately after the parade. Tonight she was to lay aside her queenly robes and crown after attending the queen's ball, most brilliant function of the two-day celebration held at Shenandoah Valley Academy Gymnasium.

Prizes were awarded to competing units as follows:

Artistic floats, Harrisonburg State Teachers College, $200; Handley High School, Winchester, $100; Banks of Winchester, $75; Lions Club, Winchester, $50.

Commercial floats, Winchester Cold Storage Co., $50; Northern Virginia Power Co., $25.

Decorated cars, Girls Athletic Association, $75; Stouffer Pony Car, $40; Mrs. William L. Irwin, $25.

Veterans of Foreign Wars, grand prize for any musical organization, District of Columbia Department, Washington, $150; first prize, Henry Hart Post, Cumberland, Md., $125.

American Legion, Morris Frock Post, Hagerstown, Md., $125; American Legion Post, Baltimore, $75; Farrady Post, Frostburg, Md., $50.

Military Schools, Augusta Military Academy, Fort Defiance Va., $100; Washington Lee High School, Clarendon, Va., $50.

Boy Scouts, Hagerstown, Md., troup, silver cup.

State highway employes, who checked cars coming into Winchester during the festival over six main North, South, East and West highways said tonight the number neared 40,000. No checkers were stationed on secondary roads of the State highway system. Traffic congestion was not serious, State police said.

16 SAILORS PERISH AS STEAMER BURNS

New York - to - Bridgeport Ship, Caught on Reef, Blazes Throughout Day.

ONLY 10 OF CREW SAVED

Stamford, Conn., April 25 (A.P.).—Loss of life in the burning of the steamer Thames, freighter, New York to Bridgeport, in Long Island Sound last night was fixed at sixteen today. Only ten of the crew were saved.

Coast Guard vessels which cruised the sound near and wide all day found no signs of the missing men or wreckage which might have given a hold for a while to some sailor before he sank.

The hulk of the Thames, driven on a reef off Todds Point by its own power, steered possibly by a man at the wheel who died in the enveloping flames, burned all day.

Six men drowned after the upsetting of one boat. Chief Engineer Clarence Tibbets, who was saved, saw them in the water without life belts and watched them go down one by one as he clung to the edges of the boat for an hour.

Pilot Leonard Hancourt, of Bridgeport, missing, may have been in the pilot house when the fire started and stayed there to beach the craft. Mr. and Mrs. Aren Larsen from their home in Sound Beach watched the steamer as it came all ablaze from far out in the sound to the reef, but they saw no one leave the vessel.

Most of the men saved were off watch and when the fire was seen they made for the two lifeboats which were on the windward side. Both upset when dropped overboard.

Of those saved eight were taken to Providence by steamer Lexington. Capt. Robert Sherman, of Stratford; Second Mate Shallo and First Assistant Engineer Lewis Hubbell were among those saved.

COTTON ASSOCIATION ACCUSED OF FRAUD

Oklahoma Officers Face Charges of Misuse of $2,000,000.

MANAGER DENIES CLAIM

Oklahoma City, April 25 (A.P.).—Suit charging misappropriation of more than $2,000,000 by officers of the Oklahoma Cotton Growers Association and asking appointment of a receiver to handle affairs of the association, which was alleged to be insolvent, was filed today in district court here.

District Judge Tom W. Chambers appointed R. H. Wilson temporary receiver and ordered business of the association to proceed as usual in compliance with a request of the petitioners.

The action was brought by W. H. Whilener, L. A. Pattilo and 28 other members of the association for themselves and purportedly in behalf of 30,000 other members in Oklahoma. Speculation on the stock market with assets of the cooperative was the principal allegation in the suit.

Sam L. Morley, manager of the association and one of the defendants, charged that the receivership action was instituted to lend emphasis to a movement against activities of the Federal Farm Board in working through cooperatives. He said he believed the suit was timed to coincide with a meeting of the American Cotton Shippers Association at Memphis, Tenn., today, at which it was planned to adopt a resolution asking Congress to investigate the Farm Board and cooperatives.

Morley said that the allegations contained in the receivership petition were "all erroneous."

Affidavit Clears Wife In Suicide of Husband

Morganton, N. C., April 25 (A.P.).—Murder charges against Mrs. Florence Benton in connection with the death of her husband were withdrawn today when Mrs. Lee Clark, a neighbor, made affidavit she saw Benton shoot himself.

Benton was found shot to death in his home last Tuesday. Mrs. Benton was arrested and had been held without bond. Mrs. Clark explained her previous silence by saying that seeing Benton kill himself had thrown her into such a nervous state she had been unable to make a statement.

VETERANS' RELIEF.

If the Government policy with respect to the relief and assistance of war veterans is inadequate, and the great interest that has been accorded the various bits of legislation designed to alter the policy seems to indicate as much, it is the duty of Congress and the desire of the people that the policy be altered. Whether or not the Johnson bill that was acted upon in the House this week in its original shape would have set up a satisfactory new general policy is an open question. The bill was not debated on its merits and, as enacted, it bore no resemblance to the original measure. The bill approved by the House will have hard sledding in the Senate. If, perchance, it should be approved by that body, the President could veto the bill without fear of criticism on the ground that the public Treasury could not stand the strain it would impose.

The original Johnson bill would have cost an estimated $50,000,000 to $200,000,000. The Rankin amendment raised the cost to an estimated $400,000,000. Other amendments that were tacked on added at least another $100,000,000 to the cost. The various estimates of cost of the bill as approved by the House run as high as $1,000,000,000, and all of them were challenged frequently during the debate. Apparently no unchallengeable estimate of the cost was available but there need be no doubt that the bill as approved would cost a pretty penny if it finally becomes law.

The Johnson bill as originally reported provided for the extension of the presumptive period for service connection of disabilities to January 1, 1925. This means that any veteran who developed a 10 per cent disability prior to January 1, 1925, would be presumed to have incurred the disability in line of service. The Rankin amendment extended the presumptive period for certain chronic constitutional diseases to January 1, 1930. The Rankin amendment was itself amended to include not only the specified chronic constitutional diseases but all disabilities and a further amendment was tacked to the bill denying the Government a rebuttal opportunity in any presumptive case.

The bill is an insult to the self-respect of the former service man. It throws open the doors to an unwarranted raid on the Federal Treasury. It represents paternalism in its worst form.

When Representative Snell asked Gen. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, for an expression of opinion on the several pieces of legislation that were under consideration, the general warned against haphazard expenditure for relief, suggested that Congress establish a definite policy that would recognize all worthy cases and made the pertinent statement that the present legislation might open the door to a flood of "liberalization" that would, in the end, cause the entire policy of veterans' relief to collapse under the weight of excessive cost. His words were prophetic. It is the desire of the people that the Government provide fairly and liberally for all former service men who deserve hospitalization, compensation or other relief. The taxpayer will cheerfully meet the cost of warranted relief, no matter what it may come to. The House had the opportunity to enact legislation that would further such a policy. Instead, influenced, no doubt, by the imminence of the elections, it passed a bill that has no chance of final enactment. It will be the responsibility of the House if legislation liberalizing the veterans' relief policy is not enacted during the session.

TRANSFERRING PROHIBITION.

The Senate judiciary committee has reported favorably the Williamson bill to transfer the prohibition enforcement unit from the Treasury to the Department of Justice. The committee eliminated the provision which would have transferred all attorneys and employes of the present enforcement unit to the Department of Justice, thus giving the Attorney General a free hand in selecting his prohibition staff. But it failed to remove the most obvious defect in the measure.

As passed by the House the bill gives the Treasury Department control over alcohol permits, but allows the Attornel General to veto its action. This is an impractical arrangement. The whole purpose of the Williamson bill is to concentrate authority for enforcement of prohibition under one department, so as to put an end to dual responsibility. Yet the House retained a provision that would lead to hopeless division of authority between the two departments in the regulation of industrial alcohol.

This is a function which clearly belongs to the Treasury. For Congress to give the Attorney General a veto power over actions of the Secretary of the Treasury would be to express a lack of confidence in the latter Cabinet official. The departments are on an equal footing. The Treasury needs no guardian to see that it issues permits only to responsible industrial concerns. Such an arrangement would doubtless lead to hopeless confusion and perhaps antagonism between the two departments.

Let Congress assign to the Department of Justice the function of detecting and prosecuting violations of the prohibition law, and leave the administration of industrial alcohol in control of the Treasury. It is inconceivable that the administrative unit would not cooperate with the enforcement unit whenever that should become necessary. But to set one department on guard against another might lead to untold mischief. It is the duty of the Senate to correct this obvious defect in the bill before sending it to the White House.

RIVERS AND HARBORS.

Sharp distinction should be made between the old time "pork barrel" bills and the present rivers and harbors bill authorizing the expenditure of more than $100,000,000. There will be criticism of the bill for a variety of reasons when it reaches the Senate, but the administration is behind it with an array of facts and arguments which will be difficult to overcome.

The authorizations contained in the bill will not increase expenditures during the next fiscal year. President Hoover will be guided by the budget figures irrespective of the authorizations, and the amount expended will not be more than $60,000,000. Furthermore, the President proposes to have the projects carried out and the appropriations expended in conformity with a new plan of efficiency in governmental business.

From the President's standpoint, the bill contains projects which may be assigned to three groups. The first is the urgent and necessary group, the second is the necessary but not urgent group and the third group contains projects which will in time become urgent and necessary but which do not require immediate attention.

The $60,000,000 to be expended during the next fiscal year will be devoted to the projects contained in the first and second groups with a minimum of expenditure devoted to the projects that can afford to wait. The advice of expert engineers will be available to the Government in distributing expenditures most effectively.

President Hoover's program is indorsed by the rivers and harbors committee of the House, of which Representative S. Wallace Dempsey, of New York, is chairman.

Discussing the bill over the radio the other night, Mr. Dempsey said:

> The intention is to cover all of the improvements which are necessary to give to the waterways which the Government has already improved their maximum of efficiency through thorough modernization and to adopt such new projects as will both reduce transportation costs locally and add to the usefulness of the waterway systems of the country as a whole, insure cheaper transportation for grain, meat and other farm products and for manufactured articles is the primary purpose of rivers and harbors improvement.

The waterways and harbor system the Government has built through the years pays handsome dividends. The projects provided for in the present bill should be considered investments in the well-being and prosperity of the country.

"PUBLIC ENEMIES."

Twenty-eight of Chicago's leading racketeers are named as "public enemies" in a statement issued by the municipal crime commission. Police Commissioner Russell has named a special hoodlum squad to persecute those proscribed and drive them from the city. Chicago has been unable to cope with these supercriminals, and the announcement is a candid admission that they are beyond reach of the law enforcement agencies.

Each of these "public enemies" has, according to a statement, "for ten years been affiliated with bootlegging, vice, bombing, racketeering and labor union domination." The heads of several notorious gangs are in the list, including Al Capone, who recently gave himself up to Chicago police and found himself "not wanted." Activities of these gangsters are so well known that the commission is able to hold them up to public condemnation without fear of libel. Yet they are at large, directing their rackets virtually without molestation. The statement is not only a proscription of these criminals; it is one of the most sweeping indictments of the American system of dealing with the criminal element that has ever been issued.

What does Chicago propose to do about the presence of these "public enemies" within its precincts? They are to be harassed. The police will be ordered to watch them and make arrests whenever possible. Efforts will be made to deport alien criminals. Raids will be made, and the commission will try to expose the political and financial connections of the proscribed. Hope of placing them behind prison bars is dim. The objective of the campaign is to drive them from Chicago and let them prey upon some other city.

Every phase of the situation emphasizes the futility of trying to put these masters of crime out of business. They operate above the law in what has been called the twilight zone. Their position in the criminal world is analogous to that of the holding company in finance and industry. The holding company which operates in the background behind great enterprises is frequently beyond reach of the law. Modern crime has copied this method of organization. The criminal genius is too smart to be caught in the execution of a felony. He becomes the directing force only, the invisible instigator of crime. In that position he is immune to the legal code prescribing punishment for common criminals. He might be arrested by the police, but his connection with the murders and robberies of his henchmen is so intangible that he is seldom convicted or even prosecuted.

The statement of the Chicago crime commission can add no stigma to the names it listed. Indeed, it may enhance the prestige of these "public enemies," at least in their own environment. It recognizes their prowess, and the futility of trying to apply law enforcement machinery fashioned for a less complex society to them. The statement is more of a distress signal than a solution of this problem.

The supercriminal who is not amenable to the law is the most serious menace to law and order that modern civilization has produced. The spectacle of organized crime flouting the law with immunity should arouse the country to a keen realization of its failure in dealing with the criminal entrepreneur, and lead to a more comprehensive endeavor to extend the law to criminal brains as well as criminal hands.

SPECIAL COINAGE.

President Hoover's veto of the bill providing for the coinage of 10,000 silver 50-cent pieces to commemorate the diamond anniversary of the Gadsden purchase from Mexico has been sustained by the House. The failure of this measure forbodes a similar fate for other special coinage bills before Congress. It is to be hoped that the practice of minting special coins for occasions of this kind is definitely at an end.

The argument advanced by President Hoover is fundamentally sound. The issuance of commemorative coins has become a nuisance. Five other bills for similar favors are pending before Congress and the Treasury is confronted with many such requests. To grant the privilege of special coins for every historic occasion would result in confusion and encourage counterfeiting. Yet if Congress thus favors one celebration, how can it refuse another? The only sound policy is uniform coinage for use only as a medium of exchange.

The clamor for souvenir coins arises from the fact that they may be sold at a profit. But Congress has authorized the minting of so many souvenir coins recently that profits have fallen off. Officials of the Philadelphia Mint, where most of these issues are coined, report that this is a worn-out device for raising money, and that large numbers of memorial coins put out recently have been returned for reminting.

President Hoover's judgment that "there are a great many historical events which it is not only highly proper but desirable to commemorate in a suitable way, but the longer use of our coins for this purpose is unsuitable and unwise," meets with general approval.

THE FILIPINO EXCLUSION QUESTION

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

Realizing that there is a large group of unemployed Filipinos on the Pacific Coast whose size is growing through fresh arrivals; that the foreignization and exclusion of Filipinos while they owe allegiance to America is an outrageous proposition; that the Lycurgian prohibition of Filipinos from leaving their country at will infringes upon Filipino-American jurisprudence; and that other solutions are either fantastic or ineffective, the suggestion was advanced in these columns a fortnight ago that as a partial solution of the problem the Hawaiian sugar planters, who are responsible for the migration of so many Filipinos, should secure their Filipino labor on the Pacific Coast and not in the Philippines as they are doing now.

The California State Federation of Labor contends that the plan has no practical value because Filipinos simply will not go back to the Hawaiian plantations in view of the fact that wages prevailing on the coast are higher than those in Hawaii.

The contention is self-destructive. It is true the scale of wages on the coast is higher, but it is also true that the cost of living is higher. In Hawaii the Filipinos are welcome, while on the coast they are unwelcome. Living in an atmosphere of hostility is expensive in every way.

Filipinos in Hawaii have steady work. On the coast the jobs open to them are mostly temporary or seasonal, and there are more workers than work to do. The best proof that the economic advantages in Hawaii are better is that the 50,000 Filipinos on Hawaiian plantations send home more than $5,000,000 yearly, while the 40,000 in the States of Washington, Oregon and California send hardly anything home.

Hawaiian industries are dependent on overseas labor. They have found the Filipino laborer most satisfactory. The Hawaiian Sugar Planters Association has renewed its license to recruit laborers in the Philippines with certain restrictions. Without advancing the fare now they arrange the transportation of roughly 10,000 Filipinos to Hawaii yearly to take the places of those who either return to the islands or go on to the Pacific Coast.

By means of a system of bonus and payments and diverse other ways the Filipinos in Hawaii are encouraged to return home when they are ready to leave their employment. A steamship company has closed its steerage accommodations from Honolulu to the mainland. But it is feared the migration to the coast will not be effectively stopped thereby. It seems the only common-sense measure to adopt is to close Hawaii by voluntary action of employers of labor to Filipinos coming direct from the Philippines until the mass which has accumulated on the coast shall have been disposed of satisfactorily.

Does the plan mean dumping a lot of bad men on fair Hawaii? Assuredly not. Most of these Filipinos are not by nature bad. Most of the trouble which the press reports arises chiefly from too much leisure. Selective employment will weed out the congenital malcontents.

Hawaii will get men who are experienced and acclimated, the wiser for their disappointments on the mainland. Impregnated with the spirit of home-coming—for with most of them reemployment in Hawaii is the only means of returning to their native soil—these Filipinos will labor under the urge of good behavior, thriftiness and application, making them more cheerful and more efficient workers.

They will eventually set foot on their native land as small capitalists, men forged on the anvil of work and privations, with their desire to see America satisfied, and experienced in the major industry of their country. Thus the Hawaiian planters, while serving their own economic interests, will have also contributed appreciably to the building up of the Philippine Islands.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

INSTRUCTIONS TO FATHER.

Says mother to me: "When the young fellows call
I wish you'd clear out of the way.
Those boys I am sure have no interest in all
That you think it important to say.

You've some reputation in town I admit,
And you've taken your college degree,
But they don't want your wisdom and don't want your wit,
It's not you they are coming to see!

"And what if they do offer you a cigar?
You don't have to smoke it right then.
Though an affable, gabby old father you are Leave the young folks alone in the den.

Don't fancy because at your jokes they may smile.
That unhappy without you they'd be.
It's all right to chat with them once in awhile
But it's not you they've dropped in to see!

"I'd swear you would sit there the whole evening long
If I didn't send you to bed.
You'd share in their laughter and join in their song
And listen to all that was said.

So hereafter when young men are calling on Jean
Take these few words of counsel from me:
When you've said your 'good evening' step out of the scene,
It's not you they have dropped in to see!"

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

When the men of the South left home to fight, their families were guarded by Negro slaves who were trusted and loved.

After the war, when slavery had been abolished, the affection and friendship that united respectable white men and respectable Negroes outlived the dark days of "reconstruction."

And today the Negro of the South is treated fairly and kindly by white men who are sure of their position and not afraid of losing caste by calling him a friend.

Those who hate and persecute him are the whites nearest to his social and economic level.

This is true in every land where two races dwell together: The weaker race is pitied and befriended by the "upper class" of the other race and cruelly bullied by its lower class.

You wonder what all of this has to do with you?

I'll tell you in a moment, but first get this truth fixed in your mind: People long accustomed to wealth and gentility are courteous to their servants, while the "new rich," not yet quite sure of their position, frequently abuse the poor and helpless in an effort to demonstrate their own superiority.

The state of mind that prompts such conduct is called an inferiority complex, and it always calls attention to the brass under the gold plate by its too vigorous effort to seem solid gold.

Now consider the conduct of your class in Sunday school.

Officers of the school make persistent effort to enlarge its membership, and their efforts occasionally introduce to your class a girl whose clothes and manners and toilet speak of poverty and limited opportunity.

Your teacher welcomes such girls and endeavors kindly and tactfully to make them feel at ease, for she feels secure in her superior position and does not fear competition.

Your classmates aren't like that—not all of them.

They sit closer to avoid contact with the newcomer.

They whisper amused comments, or speak coldly, or do some other one of the innumerable hateful things your sex can do to humiliate one who doesn't meet with their approval.

I say your classmates do these things, but I do not accuse them all. Perhaps very few are guilty.

And now I'm getting to the point.

The next time this sort of thing happens, I want you to observe that the girls who do the snubbing are the ones who are superior only in their imaginations, and not very sure of it themselves, while the girls who are kind are the ones who rank high and fear no competition.

It will be an amusing experiment, and it may show you weak spots where your own gold has worn thin. Love, DAD.

"THE CAPTIVE DENTIST" OR
"TURN ABOUT IS FAIR PLAY."

("Mexican bandits kidnap American dentist."—News item.)

Bandit chief (as the dentist is seized)—You're next.

Dentist (pretty frightened)—I think I'll come back some other time, er, if you don't mind.

Bandit chief (sharply)—Come on now. Don't be like that.

Dentist—I, er, really don't care to be kidnaped today. I've just thought of a business appointment. I'll be back tomorrow. . . .

Bandit chief (a little soothingly)—Now, don't talk that way. It won't take long. There's nothing to be afraid of.

Dentist—I'm not afraid—really I'm not. . . . I'd just rather have you kidnap me some other time.

Bandit chief (cheerily slapping the dentist on the back)—After it's all over you'll be glad you did it now instead of putting it off. Won't he boys?

Forty hard-boiled bandits (in chorus)—You bet he will!

* * * *

Dentist (now very alarmed)—But it's late and I've got another appointment. If you'll just. . . .

Bandit chief—Don't be a baby. It's nothing at all, nothing at all.

Dentist (pleadingly)—Take somebody else first. I can wait.

Bandit chief—Step right this way.

Dentist—But, er, can't you give me something so I won't feel it?

Bandit chief—Give you something so you won't feel it?

Dentist—Yes; gas or something.

Bandit chief—Don't worry. Just leave everything to us.

Dentist (still seeking a way out)—Now really, I'll go now, but I'll be back later.

Bandit chief—Now this isn't going to hurt you a bit. Is it, boys?

The bandit gang—Not a bit.

Dentist—You wouldn't fool me?

The gang—Naw-w-w-w!

(The curtain will be lowered to denote a period of several days, during which the dentist is held hostage, tortured and nearly murdered. As the curtain rises the ransom has been paid and he is being released.)

Dentist (as the bandits let him go)—Is it all over?

Bandit chief—Yes. And you didn't mind it a bit, didja?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

If the Government Enters Advertising Field, Why Limit Ads to Anti-Liquor Themes? What About Hygienic and Dietary Posters?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I agree with your correspondent that much good would be accomplished if the Government were to publish literature and posters concerning the evil effects of beverage alcohol, just as it deals with the problems of agriculture, or as it did during the World War with posters appealing to patriotism. But why limit this hygienic activity of the Government to beverages?

I have known able-bodied drys to report for work in the morning and beg off later in the day owing to their confessed overindulgence in some dish which they knew was likely to disagree with them. There is not a citizen of the United States who is not familiar with cases of impaired health and frequently of life-long misery due to intemperate eating. In fact, there is reason to think that it accounts largely for the lamentable prevalence of nervous disorders noted by medical authorities.

The dietary publicity work of the Government would be incomplete if it did not include the evil effects of bad eating as well as of pernicious drinking. Good results would no doubt be at once noticeable if a start were made with literature and posters regarding the danger involved in excessive indulgence in cabbage, hot dog, pharmacy snacks, and other indigestible food.

In the name of the art of good eating as well as good health, a poster as wonderful as any exhibited during the World War might be prepared, depicting a row of typical American noonday lunchers, seated on high stools in the act of tossing quick food down their gullets. J. F. C.

Mother's Day Should Be Celebrated 365 Times a Year.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In commemorating Mother's Day by wearing and distributing flowers, may I venture the suggestion that this particular day should be observed throughout the entire year with an occasional fond remembrance, but more particularly with kind words and continuous loving thought?

Appreciation of one's mother, whose life is self-sacrificing, lovable, noble, trusting and faithful, is too often a matter of indifference. Such indifference, I always wish to believe, is due to thoughtlessness, rather than to any spirit of animosity. The attributes of mother should be considered as they apply to the life and influence upon each generation.

Changes in our social and economic life have created in many instances a feeling of disrespect toward parents and elders, principally because they apparently fail to measure up to the newer customs. If the children of today are inclined to be ashamed of their parents, and to be particularly critical of their best friend, let them reflect on her life of sacrifice and of devotion to duty.

I sincerely trust that a more respectful attitude will be directed toward mother and be made a prevailing custom throughout the year. It is almost entirely due to her that children of today enjoy the advantages of tomorrow.

New Styles in Bootlegging Forecast If Corks and Bottles Are Banned.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The courts have under consideration the question whether or not seizure and confiscation by prohibition enforcement agents of a stock of barrels, bottles and corks is constitutional. It is argued by Government solicitors that these articles are manufactured principally for bootleggers and that therefore their sale aids and abets violation of the eighteenth amendment.

No wideawake bootlegger will lose sleep over the possibility that his supply of pint, half-pint and quart bottles and corks will be cut off. For if the court says "No bottles or corks," there will be any number of ways in which to deliver the goods. Bootleggers are ingenious. After all, bottles and corks are not an essential part of their racket. If the manufacture and sale of bottles and corks is banned, there will be several new styles in bootlegging.

A bootlegger will visit his customer—at the latter's request—unbutton his shirt, turn on a spigot, and the outlawed fluid will flow from a specially made rubber tube into such container as the customer may himself have provided. The bootlegger will probably welcome this newer method of delivery; he will save money and will run less risk of detection, inasmuch as his rubber tube will hold considerably more wet goods than he could safely carry, openly, under his arm. Commissioners Should Let Contracts With Local Builders.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with regret of the establishment of a "bread line" in Washington, and I also note regretfully that two District government buildings are to go to outside contractors, regardless of the fact that the District Commissioners have the power to reject any or all bids. One would think such power should be exercised at this time, inasmuch as it would help to relieve the unemployment situation.

There are in Washington contractors second to none so far as experience, ability and financial responsibility are concerned. The various buildings that have been completed here in the past years are proof of this.

Why do not the Commissioners set the example? Give Washington work to Washington people.

PUBLISHERS OPPOSE FIVE-DAY-WEEK PLAN

Association, at Convention, Condemns "Gag Laws" in Minnesota.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

New York, April 25 (A.P.).—Reiterating its stand against the five-day week, the American Newspaper Publishers Association at the closing session of its annual convention today approved a letter written to the International Typographical Union denouncing the plan as uneconomical.

The letter, written by Charles H. Taylor, of Boston, of the association's standing committee, was in reply to a request of Woodruff Randolph, secretary of the international union, that the publishers endorse the five-day week. Mr. Taylor said the plan was "unsound" and if adopted would be carried out at the expense of the publishers.

New York City printers, who have demanded a five-day week with the six-day pay, are seeking permission of the international union at Indianapolis to call a strike vote because the publishers have refused to grant their request.

The association adopted a resolution condemning the Minnesota "gag law," declaring it to be a violation of the first and fourteenth amendments of the Constitution.

Through a poll of the membership, the committee is seeking the approval of the association to sponsor an appeal to the United States Supreme Court of a decision under the "gag law," which caused the suspension of a Minnesota weekly paper in 1927.

Harry Chandler, of Los Angeles, was elected president of the association for the coming year, succeeding Edward H. Butler, of Buffalo. Howard Davis, New York, was elected vice president; George N. Rogers, Cleveland, was reelected secretary, and Walter Dear, of Jersey City, N. J., was named treasurer.

The publishers will hold their fall meeting at Sea Island Beach, Ga., in November, and voted to hold the 1932 fall meeting in southern California.

The widow, Mrs. Clara Wardell Jones, receives a life estate in $100,000 and property at Moose Lake, N. J.; and the children, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Barry, Dorothy W. Jones and Wardell Jones, each receive one-third of the residuary estate in trust. All live in New York.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THERE seems to be a whale of an argument going on down on Capitol Hill between Mr. Caraway's lobby committee and the press, or rather that portion of it which has been covering the committee's carryings-on.

It seems that Senator Robinson, of Indiana, the other day in the course of the examination of Mr. Curran, paid mogul of the Association Against the Drys, ran across a report made to the association of the personal as well as the political proclivities of members of the House and of the Senate. In this report it seems that some members were listed as politically dry but willing to take a drink any time one was bought for them.

And Mr. Robinson, in his guileless way, was in the act of introducing this report into the record.

* * * *

"I'LL just put this one in, this one in, and I'll just put this report in," Mr. Robinson is said to have been saying, when it occurred to Senator Blaine to look at the reports, and he kerflunked immediately and said, in effect:

"Look here, what are you doing?" And then heads were gotten together and it was decided that this was a fine thing to do—to expose dry voting, wet drinking members of Congress in any such manner as that.

Whereupon the press, or that portion of it which has been covering the committee's carryings-on, asked why the committee had such solicitude for its colleagues when it has not been so thoughtful of others.

It can not be gainsaid that this is a very fair question.

* * * *

IT so happens that two men who have figured in the lobby committee's hearings have died and the cynics say quite readily that the committee killed them, and it is a fact that any number of other reputations have been hurt. And it is not a question here either of whether these men were wronged.

But the point is that the committee has not hesitated to bare the innermost secrets of other gentlemen, and these secrets pertained to lobbying, too. Even the President's name was brought into the inquiry.

It is contended now that the report on the dry-drinking wet-voting congressmen is not a lobbying matter. The dickens, it isn't! It is highly enlightening as to just how the wet association is proceeding to undo the work of the dry association.

* * * *

CERTAINLY it is just as pertinent as the correspondence which Mr. Caraway introduced yesterday—the personal correspondence between Mr. Curran and former Senator Jimmy Wadsworth, of New York. In one very frank letter to Mr. Wadsworth, Mr. Curran referred to the members of the National Republican Club of New York as "a bunch of old dodos," or something of the sort, and to the members of the Union League as a bunch of political groups. And Senator Caraway observed as he introduced these letters:

"Your friends will be glad to know what you think of them, Mr. Curran."

So far as we are concerned, we have never felt particularly fiendish toward the members of Congress who vote dry and drink wet. To those of us who have to associate with them it is bad enough that they vote dry, without their acting the part. And we hope the gentlemen do not get any unfavorable publicity. After all, that is carrying the wet cause too far.

But it is idle to argue that the committee is not in an inconsistent position.

Wilmington, April 25 (A.P.).—The eight new directors of the Moon Motor Car Co. elected at a special meeting of stockholders held in St. Louis, Mo., April 7, today were granted an additional week's time by chancery court to file an answer to a suit brought recently by stockholders who contest the legality of the election. ACT TO SCALE DOWN POLICE RAISES SEEN

Phipps Offers Amendment to Measure Increasing Officials' Pay.

CHIEFS TO GET $8,000

The raises granted to officials of the Police and Fire Departments by the Capper-Zihlman bill would be scaled downward under an amendment to that measure introduced yesterday by Senator Phipps (Republican), of Colorado.

The bill provides a salary of $8,500 a year to the chiefs of the two departments. Under the Phipps amendment this would be reduced to $8,000 a year.

The assistant superintendent of police would get $5,000 instead of $5,500; inspectors, $4,000 instead of $4,500. Deputy chiefs in the Fire Department would receive $5,000 instead of $5,500; battalion chiefs, $4,000 instead of $4,500; fire marshal, $4,750 instead of $5,500, and superintendents, $4,750 instead of $5,500.

The amendment also provides that privates of class 3 shall receive $2,200 a year following the passage of the bill, and an increase of $100 a year until they have reached $2,400. The bill automatically would have raised their pay to $2,400.

The bill authorizes the Commissioners to deny a raise to any policeman or fireman who, in their opinion, is not entitled to it. Senator Phipps in his amendment tightens this provision with language which says that a man who has not received a raise for two years shall be regarded as inefficient and therefore subject to removal.

The Colorado senator also provided that the policemen and firemen be required to contribute 3 and 3½ per cent of their salaries to the retirement fund.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

A RADIO broadcast on which the eye of the entire sporting world will be focused will come from WBAL, Baltimore, on the afternoon of May 9, when the famous Preakness race will again be put on the air from the historic Pimlico track.

Last season WBAL broadcast this turf classic for the first time through the enterprise of Frederick R. Huber, station director. The Preakness was first run at Pimlico in 1873, netting the winner approximately $1,500. Now this race carries with it a purse of $60,000, in addition to the famous Woodlawn silver vase made by Tiffany at $80, and which is an added trophy.

Due to the advent of daylight-saving time, radio programs originating in New York and other cities observing this schedule will come into Washington one hour earlier, beginning tomorrow.

HAVING chased an organ grinder and his monkey out of town, presumably because the former made too much noise, Police Judge Mattingly might do something really useful by chasing out a few of the apartment house occupants who allow their radios to go full blast from morning until night to the distraction of their unfortunate neighbors.

By means of a portable five-watt short-wave set strapped to his back, and an antenna strung between two poles carried by attendants, Ted Husing will follow athletes about Franklin Field in Philadelphia this afternoon and give a word picture of the thirty-sixth annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival. (WMAL—2:30 o'clock.)

Mayor "Jimmy" Walker and Commissioner Grover A. Whalen will be heard presenting medals for bravery during a descriptive broadcast of the annual New York police parade this afternoon. (WRC—2 o'clock.)

Posthumous medals will be awarded to five policemen killed in line of duty during the year.

Universalists all over the United States will tune in tonight on the dedication of their National Memorial Church, at Sixteenht and S streets northwest. (WMAL—8:30 o'clock.)

With music by Charles Wakefield Cadman, "Captain of the Guards" ("La Marseillaise"), a singing picture, with John Boles, will be heard from San Francisco. (WRC—8:30 o'clock.)

A radio parade of practically all its stars has been arranged in Hollywood by Paramount (WMAL—10 p. m.), including Clara Bow, Ruth Chatterton, Buddy Rogers, Mary Brian, "Skeets" Gallagher, Leon Erroll, Gary Cooper, Clive Brook, Harry Green, Jack Oakie and little Mitzi Green.

THE latest word is that WRC is going to broadcast the baseball games locally when the team goes out of town, but that WMAL and the other stations will lay off.

Uncle Sam, after some of the good gravy for himself, is now trying to get his hands on patents covering devices for the operation of radio sets by house current obtained by Francis W. Dunmore and Percival D. Lowell, two wide-awake engineers formerly employed at the Bureau of Standards.

Up to the time they got into the game we had to fool around with battery sets. The claim is that the socket invention was the product of their work at the bureau and therefore the patents belong to the Government. It is estimated that past royalties from the R. C. A. alone would amount to $20,000,000, to say nothing of what other radio companies might have to cough up.

Naturally, the two young inventors are expected to put up quite a fight against the Government trying to take these fabulous amounts away from them now that it looks as if there were a chance of their cashing in.

WITH the commission yesterday granting permission to the Bronx Zoo, of New York City, to broadcast, listeners may soon hear the lions roar, the monkeys chatter and the birds screech.

The plan is to tour the various animal houses with a short wave transmitter mounted on a truck. After this has been accomplished we suggest they come down here and try to pick up the old sea lion, or whatever it is, that stirs up the animals in Rock Creek Park and gets them to howling in the middle of the night.

Crowds in the plaza of Tegucigalpa, through the successful operation of their new radio station, HRB, down in Honduras, heard the concert from here last Monday night at the Pan American Union perfectly, Franklin P. Adams reports.

From the Detroit News: Lady (to census enumerator): "We have two boys, a girl and a washing machine and a radio. Don't you just love Rudy on the radio? He's so sweet. Jim gets so mad. He's just like his sister, &c."

Jane Interprets the Mode

Not a puzzle but just a chic way of showing you a lot of fancy mules.

Paris, April 25.

OH, we have seen the most adorable boudoir slippers lately! Mules, we call them in English, mules also they call them in French, but with a slightly different touch which makes the word sound like "mooeeles."

Heels have become as high as they dare to be—and they have dared to be high enough so that it's quite some trick to balance on them, since mules, as we all know, give no support to the ankles. You wouldn't exactly run around the house in them, anyway.

And awfully smart now are the toes that are square, with a correspondingly square heel. Also crepe de chine is the smartest material—crepe de chine with gold or silver leather incrustations.

Then one wouldn't overlook the mules of velvet, or those again entirely covered with tiny flat feathers. Or satin ones to match one's lingerie, with, whatever do you think, lace incrustations put on by hand! Oh, it's fun to be a lovely lady these days, albeit very expensive.

* * * * *

Ca-n-n-n-n't you please tell us how to make boudoir slippers, deah, deah, Dah-ray! Well, I've had that request for so long, and it just seemed an impossible job, but then nothing is really impossible for this gang for very long. So as a result I've made you an illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make $75 mules out of $1.95 ones. And it even goes one better and you can believe it or not, it tells how to make delightful boudoir slippers out of your old satin evening slippers? You can mail a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, and we'll get it Monday, and the leaflets will come in then, too, and by the end of the week you'll have the boudoir slippers of your heart.

* * * * *

This summer more than any other, street things worn without a coat can be complete and finished in appearance without a fox fur.

For street wear is so perfectly finished with little scarfs and gadgets, the jackets more often than not with a scarf collar with which you couldn't possibly wear a fur.

And the capelets! So many dresses are finished with capes, in fact, most of them—how, therefore, could you possibly wear a fur? In other words street dresses, street tailleurs and coats are complete in themselves these days—which gives us all the more reason to be chic and all the less reason to excuse a lack of smartness on financial grounds.

* * * * *

If it's postmarked today, well, it's pretty late but just to show you how much I want you to have my adorable Greek nightgown, I'll send you this week's illustrated leaflet telling you how to make it!

* * * * *

Almost every couturier shows at least one trick outfit with a circular or pleated cape that can be removed and tied on around the hips to form some sort of an extra skirt flounce. The idea has possibilities, but it does have to be awfully carefully engineered. If you're going to try it, practice well so that when worn either as a cape or as a part of the skirt it looks exactly like that and nothing more and nothing less.

* * * * *

Tomorrow you should look in The Sunday Post for the weekly Dare fashion letter. We know you'll enjoy it.

Au Revoir!

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"The Bank Roll."

"CAN any 'luck come' of deliberately marrying for money?" The reader who asks the question is the mother of a young man who was jilted and who feels not only jilted but injured beyond repair.

Seems the romance dated back to childhood. And then came the villain with the bank roll. Read the letter. Is the girl really "deliberately marrying for money? Or is she rather decidedly marrying for romance, which she may or may not find in the new love:

"My son, a really 100 per cent man, is heartbroken over the behavior of the girl he has loved since childhood. They have been engaged for four years. Now she is 26 years old and has met and became engaged to a man of 40 for whom she works. It is a case of bank roll pure and simple, although she cried for an hour in my home last night telling me that she knew she should have broken off with my son and told him so two years ago before this man appeared. She states that her "love" for this 40-year-old man is so strong that even if she were married she would have to marry him! Now what kind of talk is that? Will you please enlighten me and also write an article on whether any luck can ever come of a girl deliberately marrying for money."

Now "marrying for money" is one thing, and marrying because you can not help yourself is quite another! The young lady at least seems herself convinced that she is now irrevocably in love, and while no doubt she is glad about the "bank roll" that does not seem to be her chief concern. There is no reason why a girl of 26 should not love quite comprehensively a man of 40, and no questions asked. Were he 80, one might be prone to question motives, but men of 40 after all are still able to get about, and girls of 26 are not beyond the touch of romance.

Broken engagements, like broken marriage ties are to be regretted, but in the cold light of reason they are unavoidable. Whether it is a bank roll or a luring voice when once the something comes between, then the answer and the only answer is the parting of the ways. Sad partings, but necessary. And engagements that drag on for years usually end in parting. So our girl of 26 probably found the glamour gone from romance No. 1 and so was receptive to romance No. 2, bank roll or none. The thing for son to do is meet this first life's jolts like a man and a gentleman, it will ease the shock of all the jolts that follow.

Do not judge harshly the girl who can not go through with an engagement. It is a matter entirely beyond human control.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

PREPARING THE CLOTHES FOR LAUNDERING.
(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

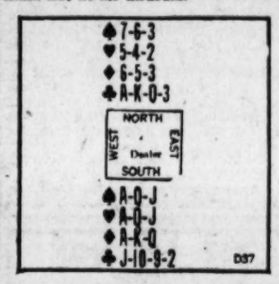
Mend all torn places except in the feet of hosiery, and remove all serious stains before washing. Many small tears are made larger and many otherwise removable stains are set by laundering. Turn all garments inside out. Place the cotton and linen together and the silk and wool in different piles. Separate the very dirty from the slightly soiled. Notice whether artificial silk, now termed "rayon" by the trade, is present in any of the fabrics or trimmings. Artificial silk is often much weakened by water and must be laundered as a very delicate material. Sort the clothes in a clean place. The practice of throwing soiled clothes on a dirty floor increases the work of laundering. A convenient division of clothes and order of washing is as follows (but when the washing is small, some of the groups must, of course, be combined):

Cotton and linen — Table linen, doilies, centerpieces, bed linen, dresser scarfs, slightly soiled towels, thin white clothing, heavy white clothing, handkerchiefs, towels, slightly soiled light-colored garments, slightly soiled dark-colored garments; very dirty garments, hosiery, silks, woolens, curtains, blankets, comforters and special miscellaneous.

WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

On recent Saturdays in this series of articles for the beginner we have been considering hands in which it is advantageous to obtain more leads from dummy than can be obtained by using only the obvious entries. Continuing this subject let us look at an admirable illustration of a type of hand not at all unusual.



At either Auction or Contract Bridge South would be the Declarer playing a No Trump contract.

Supposing the Jack of Diamonds to be the original lead, South would win and then note that he might wish to lead Hearts and Spades twice each from dummy so as to take a second finesse in each suit should the first one succeed. North has three obvious entries in Clubs; but as it may be desirable to lead four times from that hand, the Declarer should scheme to create an extra entry as follows:

To trick 2, he should lead one of his high Clubs (Jack, Ten or Nine) from South, overtaking with an honor in North; and then should try one of his major finesses. Supposing it to succeed, a second high Club should be led from South and again overtaken by North. There can be no risk in this overtake because if the two remaining adverse Clubs both should be in the East hand, Declarer still has two commanding Clubs.

With East following to the second Club lead, Declarer is assured of two more entries in the North hand because, after trying another finesse, he can overtake South's third high Club and, after a third finesse, the adverse Clubs being exhausted, can lead the Deuce from South, winning with the Trey in North which will put him in position to try the fourth finesse.

For the benefit of the beginner who is anxious to see just how this hand might work, the cards of the Declarer are repeated together with the cards East and West are supposed to hold:

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled "THE PLAYING PROBLEMS." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"TAURUS"

IF April 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:50 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7 a. m., and from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.

There will be opportunities afloat on this date for those who have vision and the courage to open their doors to them. Things will not run according to any prearranged schedule. There may be note of sadness.

Children born on this date will be naturally timid and will have an unusually large fear complex. They should grow up to realize that molehills are molehills, worth nothing but a passing kick, and that mountains are mountains, worth climbing. They will be easily influenced.

You are suffering from "temperament;" it is your alibi for all your shortcomings. It leads you a restless and an interesting life; it is the cause of your changeable moods and passing fancies. It makes you desire "something doing" all the time, and continual changes. It makes you have passionate likes and dislikes, temporary in character. One never knows what your reactions will be to things, and are a constant surprise.

You expect and demand a lot out of life and its people, and you get it. On the other hand, it may be said that you give as much as you receive. You are positive, vital and interesting, a real force wherever you may be. You charm people and you aggravate them, but you make few enemies. You are at times carried away on waves of emotionalism, when you do or say things, which may be criticized, but on the whole you aim to play the game at all times and with all people.

You have vision and "nerve," and are destined to make something far above the average of yourself. You are able to work like a Trojan, when in a working mood. You can think quickly, and act quickly. All work and no play, however, does not suit you and you always manage to get your share of the latter. It is doubtful if a journey in the matrimonial field will bring you joy or happiness. You resent any restrictions on your personal freedom.

Successful people born April 26:
1—Alice Cary, author.
2—Martha Finley, author.
3—Benjamin F. Tracy, Secretary of Navy under Harrison.
4—John Clark Ridpath, historian.
5—Harvey Fisk, financier.
6—Henry Morganthau, Ambassador to Turkey.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I HAVE a Boston fern in the yard which has all died down. Will it come up again? I also have a begonia which has been growing all year; now it is beginning to look straggly. What do you suggest? Kindly tell me of a few seeds I might sow at this time for interior house use. I refer to pot culture.

MRS. J. B.

It is too early to plant a Boston fern in the open. However, if you repot it at this time and keep it well watered it will likely come up and be more beautiful than ever. Better keep the pot indoors until late April. Would transplant the begonia, using fresh soil and cut it back. Most annuals do best in the open. Salpiglossis, scabiosa and lantana will grow in the house if given plenty of sun, fresh air and water.

Please tell me something about the culture of the gas plant.

HANNAH Y. T.

The gas plant does not take kindly to having its roots disturbed. Never disturb it, for if left in the same position it will produce more and more tall flower stems. This plant prefers a rather heavy and moderately rich soil in an open, sunny position. When once established drought will not affect it. It is best raised from seed.

Please tell me if idelweiss is a suitable choice for a rockery.

EMILY H. R.

This is an ideal plant for a rockery.

Please give me a list of five vines with which you feel I might be successful in a shady garden.

MRS. GEORGE F.

Kedsu (Japanese), Dutchman's pipe, ampelopsis, English ivy and euonymous all do well in shade.

Please give me a list of ten herbs which I can raise in my garden. I want to attempt this in a serious way. If I am successful I may attempt to raise some commercially. —

A NEW LAND OWNER.

Sage, thyme, sweet marjoram, lavender, sweet fennel, dill, burnet, mint, true tarragon and borage can all be grown in the home garden.

Please tell me whether to plant columbine in sun or shade.

MISS ALICE T. U.

Most columbines do well in the sun, but will stand some shade.

Please give me some advice about planting geraniums. I want some pink-flowering plants for window boxes on the sunny side of my bungalow. Please tell me if geraniums and English ivy would do well in such a location. The boxes have sun between 11 a. m. and 3 p. m.

MRS. GEORGE W. R.

Yes, pink geraniums are always colorful and would do well in such a location. I think a few blue argeratums might add to the attrativeness of the boxes.

Please tell me if hardy pinks are suitable for planting in a rocky garden.

MARY G.

Yes, they fill an important place in a rock garden.

Please tell me if iceland poppies will flower the first year from seed.

AN AMATEUR GARDENER.

While these are hardy perennials, they flower the first year from spring-sown seed.

Please tell me whether bonemeal and wood ashes make a good spring tonic for grass.

JACOB S.

Yes.

We have all heard the story of the father who asked his son if he would have some more pie, and when the son said "No," the father said "No what," to which the son replied "No more pie." That little incident had a replica in the grim ward of a French hospital at San Malo, where I was caring for American flu cases. The major was making his tour of inspection, and looking at one poor youngster hardly able to breathe, he said, ""ell, boy, how are you? Getting anything to eat?" The poor kid faintly replied, "No," to which the major, ever mindful of the respect due him, said "No what." "No solid food," came the feeble response of the boy. Even a major has a sense of humor and can laugh at times.

A "Bottle" Baby

Late in April, 1919, in Brest, while awaiting passage home, I witnessed the following incident which gave me the best laugh I had had in a long time. I was standing on a bridge watching some American sailors returning to their ship after what I suppose had been a day's shore leave. The various packages they carried were being inspected before they boarded the small boat which was taking them out.

One chap came along with his bundle, took in the situation and quietly disappeared behind a large stone column which hid him from view of the others. Looking around he carefully opened his package and took out a bottle to the top of which he tied a string. This he attached to his leg so that his bottle was nicely concealed under the leg of his trousers. Then he went innocently in and I have often wondered if he enjoyed his bottle which another sailor assured me "wasn't a milk bottle, either." NORA F. MELTON,

Mamas Darling

We called him "Pearl." He just wasn't one of the regular fellows. He could sing high "C" in a manner that would make Elsie Janis blush. He was just a mother's pampered pet, drawn from delicate environs and thrown into the great maelstrom of war.

He was detailed with the "moppers up" and had one invariable method of procedure. He would pause at the entrance of a dugout and shout in his shrill, piping voice, "How many flatheads down there?" Upon receiving a reply he would flick the cap off a hand grenade and toss it in the direction of the voice with this advice, "Well, break this up among you."

Note: Pearl's fame spread throughout the A. E. F., but you had to know him to really appreciate it.

Completely Protected

The French military hospital where I was helping care for some wounded American soldiers was located about a mile outside of the town of Senlis, where we were quartered. On bright mornings it was a glorious walk, but not so pleasant on dark, rainy nights, as one seldom encountered a fellow being in that devastated district, and ruined buildings provided excellent hiding places for those of evil intent.

It was always good practice to keep right in the middle of the road, and one night as I was returning alone, my coworker, who lived in France having been called home on account of a relative's death, I saw several figures moving slowly ahead. I had no knowledge of any American troops in the vicinity, but there were many French and colonial troops, although I was unable to distinguish their uniforms in the dark.

I was not frightened—much, as a nurse's uniform is always her greatest protection, but I did not intend to take any chances. So, lowering my umbrella and taking a good, tight grip on it and also shifting a can of solidified alcohol from my coat pocket to a more strategic position, I planned my line of possible defense and marched boldly ahead.

As I neared the group I discovered them to be three American colored soldiers, and when within speaking distance they greeted me with "Bon soir, Miss." I turned and said, "Why, hello, boys; you are an awfully long ways from home, aren't you?"

"'Deed we is, miss," was the surprised response, "we're from Oklahoma." Where is you from an' what you doin' 'way out her by yo'se'f? Ain't you scared?"

"Oh, no," I replied, "I'm a Red Cross Nurse taking care of some wounded boys in that hospital you passed a little way back, and I'm never afraid when I know there are any of our American soldiers around."

They were very much pleased and said how much they thanked the "Red Cross ladies" for all they did for the soldiers and proudly accompanied me to my quarters "just to be sure you get back safe."

One We Missed

One of th strangest sights I ever witnessed was during a visit to a cemetery in Sedan. As you probably know, Sedan was the scene of an important battle during the Franco-Prussian War, and after this affair the townsfolk had carried all the dead from the field. They built a sort of vault and laid the bodies side by side, face up, on the cement floor—the French on the right side and the Prussians on the left, and erected two fences between them, leaving an aisle for visitors.

The elements of time and nature eventually decomposed the flesh and left only skeleton bones, fragments of clothing, caps, side arms, &c. In the late war, Sedan was again captured by the Germans. The crown prince visited the cemetery vault and, in the words of the caretaker: "He was horrified. He cried. He ordered the remains of the Germans buried and a tomb built over them."

And so, if you should visit Sedan today you would see what I saw. Three tombs on one side of the fences and a row of French skeletons on the other. TOM FRANKLIN, WHOZIT?

("WHOZIT?" is a test of your knowledge of history and current events. The statements below describe a character whom you should be able to identify. Match your knowledge and memory against those of your friends.)

1. He was a Scotchman.
2. Late in the seventeenth century he went to London where he gained favor in society but was forced to flee to the continent after he killed a man in a duel.
3. He went to France where he promoted a gigantic financial and mercantile project resulting in a riot of speculation and the ultimate collapse of the entire scheme.
4. This scheme that failed is generally known in history as "The South Sea Bubble."

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

FIGURING HEALTH OF BABIES.

THE health of babies is judged by the infant mortality rate. There is no other satisfactory way of forming an opinion based on facts that can be tested. Judging by this standard the health of American babies improved definitely prior to 1915. Between that and 1918 it remained rather stationary. Between 1918 and 1921 there was a marked improvement. The improvement between 1921 and 1924 was slight but definite. Since 1924 there has been a slight loss. The infant mortality rate, which was once well over 100, had fallen to 74 by 1924. There are places where it is 50, some where it is 40, and a few where it is less than 30.

Dr. Richard A. Bolt thinks the improvement can be expected to go lower still. We have not reached the limit of what can be done. So far as the health of babies over 6 months of age is concerned, improvement will not be great. Most mothers know how to care for a baby in that age period and those who do not are fast learning. The need for improvement is among the babies less than 3 months old. The most important group is the babies less than 1 month old. The greatest problem is to keep the baby alive for one day. Second, comes that of baby health during the first week of life, and then follow the problems of the group between 1 week and 1 month of age.

Dr. Bolt's opinion that we can expect the infant mortality rate to go still lower is because he thinks we will get women through labor with less danger to themselves and their babies, and because we will take more intelligent care of very young babies. For one thing, he thinks labors are too much hurried—too much operating of various kinds. He thinks we should have more old-fashioned waiting for nature to take its course. For another thing, he thinks we should make some changes in the diet of prospective mothers in the later months of pregnancy and this should be continued while they are breast-feeding.

Instead of saying that a baby is congenitally weak, and letting it go at that, we must find the reason and remedy it.

SALT IN THE MORNING.

Mrs. J. writes: Is it harmful to take a quarter teaspoonful of common table salt in one cup of water before breakfast each day?

REPLY.

Ten grains of salt in a quart of water makes a solution that approximates what is called a normal salt solution. One-quarter of a teaspoonful is somewhat more than ten grains.

A glassful of normal salt solution, taken before breakfast, is one of the least harmful agents taken for overcoming habitual constipation.

Pegler

NEW YORK, April 25.—Of all the authorities who have testified regarding the drinking habits of the college students and old grads, especially at football games, Mr. Will Roper, the retiring coach of Princeton University's Football Teams, is the only one who has seen some of the same things that I have seen.

"It has been distasteful to me," said he to the judiciary committee of the House of Representatives, "to attend dock of conventions in the last five years because of the indiscriminate use of liquor. I do not want maudlin people to shove liquor down my coat collar. After a large football game, go to the caretakers of the grounds and ask them how many pint flasks they have gathered up. They will give an answer that will astound you."

Not Mentioned by Stagg or Yost.

It is reassuring to me to read such testimony as coming from Mr. Roper because he occupies a distinguished position and I had been wondering if anybody else had ever noticed these matters. Mr. A. A. Stagg overlooked them and Mr. Fielding H. Yost, of the University of Michigan, did not mention them, either, in their testimony before the same committee some time ago, which was puzzling because I was almost positive that I had seen considerable drinking, not to say lushing and guzzling, before, during and after the big games and also at conventions—athletic, political and otherwise.

In fact, the most industrious drinking that it has ever been my privilege to witness was accomplished at a political convention in Houston, Tex., two years ago come June; but, next to that, I believe the most interesting feats of drinking have been achieved at sporting events, intercollegiate and otherwise.

Alcoholics and Athletics Closely Associated.

It may seem strange that alcoholics and athletics should be so closely associated, but I can give assurance that this is so and that any sport writer covering any year program of important events must either go on the wagon altogether or exercise very strict self-control if he is not to drink himself out of his job and into the psychopathic ward within a year or two, the exact elapsed time depending largely on the tolerance of his sports editor and on his own tolerance for the various kinds of refreshments which he encounters on his assignments.

I have not found the conventions distasteful as Mr. Roper has, but then he is an habitual teetotaler with no personal sympathy for stimulants. But, nevertheless I have been noticing the same things that presented themselves to his attention, perhaps in even more exaggerated form than he saw them.

Mr. Roper probably does not get around to the Kentucky Derby and therefore has never heard the revelry by night in the hotel rooms and corridors of Louisville and Cincinnati. Perhaps, also, when he is returning from a football game he rides with the team in a private railroad car and therefore does not have a chance to observe the boys and girls in the other cars in the train. And I never see him around at the winter league banquets and reunions of gentlemen interested in both amateur and professional sport, so there again he missed some background for his testimony, not that his testimony lacked the authority of personal observation.

California Blowdeo Is Recalled.

Mr. Roper's testimony recalls an incident which occurred in California at football time about two years ago last fall. A hotel corporation there presented a claim to some alumni organization for damage to the furniture and curtains of several rooms which had occurred in the course of a celebration following the victory of their team. The complaint alleged that there had been great disorder in the rooms occupied by the alumni on the evening after the game and went on to relate that chairs had been torn, limb from limb, by jubilant adherents of the team and tossed out of high windows into the streets, subjecting pasers-by to great peril of life and limb and the hotel company to serious liability.

It may be possible that these alumni were stimulated by nothing more than the joy of vicarious victory, but a large number of empty bottles were found in the suites, creating a suspicion that some one had been holding the constitution in

QUAKERS' VERSATILE STAR SHATTERS OWN RECORD IN TRIUMPH

Wins in Five Events, Bettering Vault, Shot Marks.

Cosh, of G. U., 4th; Chicago Triumphs in 2 Relays.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, April 25 (A.P.).—A record-breaking victory in the decathlon championship by Big Barney Berlinger, of Pennsylvania, for the second year in succession, and a brace of smashing relay triumphs for the University of Chicago's sprint stars today furnished the thrills for the opening half of the twenty-sixth annual Penn relay carnival.

Spread-eagling eight rivals with the greatest all-around performance of his career, the 21-year-old Berlinger rolled up a grand total of 7,460.609 points to score a one-sided victory and surpass his 1929 carnival mark of 7,298.978 points.

For nine of the ten events in the all-day struggle Perlinger set a pace that threatened to topple the American decathlon record of 7,784.68 points, set last year by Ken Doherty, of Detroit. The Quaker giant, however, finished a poor last in the final event, the 1,500-meter run, and tossed away his chances by collecting only 244 points, when he needed over 500 to touch Doherty's mark.

Berlinger Wins Five Of Ten Events.

Berlinger, however, captured five of the ten events. Broke records in two of them with marks of 12 feet 6 inches in the pole vault and 46 feet in the shot, and wound up the day nearly 700 points ahead of his nearest rival, George Spalding, a Negro, from Morgan College, of Baltimore.

Berlinger, aside from his record-breaking events, won the high jump at 6 feet ½ inch; the javelin with 174 feet 8 inches, and the broad jump at 22 feet 6 inches. He tied for second in the 100-meters at 11.6 seconds and in the 110-meter high hurdles at 17 seconds; threw the discus 116 feet 11 inches; ran the 400-meter in 55.2 seconds for sixth place and was last in the 1,500-meter run in 6:02.

The final decathlon standing: Barney Berlinger, Pennsylvania, 7460.609 points; second, George Spalding, Morgan College, Baltimore, 6771.756 points; third, George Welczewski, Boston College, 6696.713; fourth, Clarion Cosh, Georgetown, 6571.938; fifth, Dan Chubbuck, Connecticut Aggies, 6505.834; Walter Hutchinson, Ithaca, N. Y., 6074.387; Llewellyn Parlette, Georgetown, 5870.888; Tucker Swartz, Gettysburg, 5884.872; R. L. Todd, Indiana, 5765.789.

Chicago Leads Western Invaders.

The Western invasion in the relays was led by Chicago's fliers with spectacular results. After tying in time with Ohio State's star quartet, anchored by the famous George Simpson, in the quarter-mile championship at 42.7 seconds, the Chicago team came back to capture the run-off in 42.2 seconds as Allen East, the Maroon anchor, withstood Simpson's sensational finishing bid. East won by a foot after Simpson had cut down 2 yards of the deficit he faced on the last 110-yard leg. Pennsylvania was accorded third place on time.

Three of the same four Chicago runners topped off their day's work by out-footing the East's best, Georgetown and New York University, in the sprint medley when the winning margin again was a bare foot and the time 3 minutes, 29 9.10 seconds for the aggregate route of 1 mile, run off in legs of 440, 220, 220 and 880.

Three-Quarter Mile Run Big Upset.

The biggest upset came in the special three-quarter-mile run in which Leo Lermond, the internationally famous Boston A. A. distance runner, finished a bad last in a field of three. The event was planned as a medium for a record attempt by Lermond, but the cold weather caused his legs to stiffen, and he pulled up on the last lap after trailing George Bullwinkle, of the College of the City of New York, all the way. Bullwinkle's time of 3 minutes 5 3-10 seconds compared favorably with the world's record of 3:02 3-5, set by Tommy Conneff in 1895.

Kinnamon Lone Capital Winner At Penn Relays

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 25.—Bill Kinnamon, of the University of Maryland, was the only winner produced by the athletes of the District of Columbia group in today's Penn Relay events.

Kinnamon, running in the 400 meter hurdles, broke the tape in 56.8 seconds to lead a strong field that included Eric Kjellstrom, of Georgetown, who was defending the title he won here last year. Kjellstrom finished third behind J. E. Hatfield, of Indiana.

Georgetown's representatives in the gruelling decathlon tests faced exceptionally strong opposition, especially in Barney Berlinger of Penn, who set a meet record in retaining his title. Clarion Cosh, who finished fourth last year, again placed fourth and Llewellyn Parlette, a new comer to the event was seventh in the field of nine.

Cosh Withdraws From 1,500 Meters.

Cosh led the field in the 400 meter dash in which he was clocked in 52 seconds. He may have made a much better showing in the final score had he competed in the 1500 meter flat race but he did not appear for this test as he was very tired.

The Georgetown Sprint Medley Relay Team took second to Chicago in a fast race which went to the Windy City quartet in 3 minutes 29 9-10 seconds. Burke, Briggs, Carlin and Mara composed the Capital City Team and gave the winner's a battle throughout the race. New York University was third.

Central High School's speedy relay team won its beat in the quarter-mile relay championships of America, but the Capital team, with little competition, was timed in only 45 seconds and lost a place in the final which was decided on time. Reilly, Hinkle, Smith and Naylor were the members of the team.

Richard White, of Maryland, entered in the running hop, step and jump, made a good mark on his first try, which led the field, but subsequent jumps by the other competitors forced him out of the running. Sol Furth, of New York University, an added starter took the event with a mark of 47 feet 8¾ inches.

Vance Allows 3 Hits In Beating Braves, 5-1

Boston, April 25 (A.P.).—After three successive postponements, the Boston Braves finally staged their home opening today, but without much success. They could do nothing with the offerings of Dazzy Vance and the Brooklyn Robins hit hard to win the game, 5 to 1.

Vance held the Braves to three scattered hits and gave but three walks. Ben Cantwell was driven from the hill in the fifth inning after the Robins had scored five runs on nine hits. Bob Smith then shut out the visitors.

Only 6,000 fans sat through the cold opening game after Lieut. Gov. William S. Youngman of Massachusetts had thrown out the first ball.

Kremer Scores Second Victory Over Cards, 6-1

Pittsburgh, April 25 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates played their home opener here today after having been held up two days by cold weather, and celebrated by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 1.

The veteran right-hander, Remy Kremer, scored his second victory of the season over the St. Louis Club. He was opposed by Sherdel through most of the game, Haid going to the mound in the seventh.

Chick Hafey and Ira Flagstead drove out home runs for the contending teams, both being long drives over the left field wall. Hafey's was one of the longest ever poled out of Forbes Field. Engle, playing third for Pittsburgh in place of Pie Traynor, accounted for three hits, two of them doubles.

Cubs Win From Reds In 12th Inning, 6 to 5

Chicago, April 25 (A.P.).—Pat Malone pitched the Cubs to a twelve-inning victory this afternoon, five hits in the last frame counting two runs to win out, 6 to 5, after the Cincinnati Reds had threatened to win themselves with one marker in the same frame.

The Bruins knocked fifteen hits during the long session, Wilson and Heathcote leading the parade with three apiece, most of which were for extra bases. Red Lucas finally gave way to Johnson in the twelfth after three hits had been made off him.

St. Louis, Mo., April 25 (A.P.).—Dave Harris, late of the Portland Club of the Pacific League, made his first appearance at bat in the American League today and hit a homer, scoring Bud Clancy ahead of him. Harris' four-ply swat was all the damage the White Sox could do to Southpaw Walter Stewart and the Browns won 4-2. Harris batted for Riddle.

The veteran Red Faber did effective hurling until the fifth. McKain relieved Faber in the eighth after the Browns had done all their scoring.

6th Straight Dropped by Tigers, 5-4

10th Inning Rally Is Climax of Indians' Uphill Fight.

Old Teammates Beat Uhle; Seven Double Plays in Game.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 25 (A.P.).—The Cleveland Indians opened their three-game series with the Detroit Tigers here today by coming from behind to score a 5-4 victory over their old teammate George Uhle in ten innings. It was the Tigers' sixth straight defeat.

The Tigers had a three-run lead at the end of the third inning due to sloppy fielding by the Indians. The Tribe got to Uhle for three runs in the sixth. They tied the score in the seventh and the winning run came on Jamieson's single, Fonseca's double and Hodapp's infield roller.

Yanks Beat Red Sox, 3-2; Ruth Hits Homer

Yankee Stadium, New York, April 25 (A.P.).—A great pitching duel between Henry Johnson and Milton Gaston was decided in the tenth by doubles by Lazzeri and Chapman which pushed over the big run for the home club in the series opener with the Red Sox to give the Yanks their first victory of the season, after five straight defeats. The score was 3 to 2.

Johnson fanned ten batters and Gaston six. The home right hander gave but six hits, while the Yanks collected seven off Gaston. Ruth hit his first 1930 homer in the seventh to tie the score.

The Red Sox failed to tally after the first frame when they made all their runs, being aided by a Koenig error and long hits by Cicero and Regan. The latter made half of the visitors' blows.

About 10,000 were on hand to cheer the locals in their first league triumph under the management of Bob Shawkey.

Fronk Holds Toro Too Tightly, Loses Much Ground.

William T., Rushed to Front, Scores by 4 Lengths.

By. J. B. SNODGRASS
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, April 25.—A weak ride by Willie Fronk on Edward Beale McLean's Toro resulted in this one finishing second to W. E. Caskey, Jr.'s, William T. in the Dixie Trial Handicap, mile and one-eighth feature that attracted 12,000 fans here today.

It is true that William T. led Toro to the wire by four lengths, but Toro was was so poorly ridden that many horsemen declared after the race that the Washington-owned horse would have more than made up that ground with a better ride.

William T. with 107 pounds up, two more than he is asked to carry in the $25,000 Dixie Monday at Pimlico, rushed to the top. Toro tried to go along with him, but was held so tightly that his head was in the air as the leaders swept around the clubhouse bend.

Dr. Freeland Makes Strong Bid.

Going down the back lane Toro was still fighting for a chance to run, but Fronk was keeping him back in fourth position well off the rail.

In the meantime William T., who was under wraps in front, was lapped by Dr. Freeland, who had rushed up fast on the rail.

As the field left the back lane, William T. ran into a length lead, while Inception and Dr. Freeland were endeavoring to hang on. This forced Toro to lose many valuable lengths by going the overland route.

However, Toro was plenty good enough to circle his field and be second at the turn for home. The effort told on him, for in the run to the wire, while he easily held the horses behind him safe. He was unable to cut down the big lead, which William T. had secured in the run around the bends. Toro should have been allowed to run a bit on the back stretch. This would have placed him in an early contending position and would have saved him many valuable lengths in the run from the back lane to the home stretch.

Today's race should prove very beneficial to both Toro and William T. who are going after the $25,000 Dixie, a mile and three-sixteenth race, on Monday at Pimlico.

Samuel Ross Wins With Happy Scott.

Samuel Ross, of Washington, trotted out a speeder in the four and one-half furlong opener, when he sent Happy Scot, 2-year-old son of Scotch Broom—Felicitation postward and the colt came within a fifth of a second of the track record of 53 seconds to pay his backers $79.70.

The 12,000 fans stood silent as McGinnis broke Happy Scot out of the Waite stall gates ahead of a dozen other baby racers.

The colt raced out of the backstretch two lengths in advance of his field. At the turn for home he was three lengths on top and at the eighth pole he had a four-length lead, where McGinnis, looking back, started easing his mount to the wire. Happy Scot ran here on April 19. He finished tenth by twelve lengths over a heavy track, the time being 0:55 4-5. Today he ran so fast and won so easily that there is not the slightest doubt he could have shattered the existing four and one-half furlong record had his rider let him do his best.

Trailing Happy Scot to the wire came J. P. Jones' Hieaway, with H. P. Whitney's Totem, coupled in the wagering with Summerday, third.

Workman Triumphs With Calgary Kay.

Sonny Workman, leading winning rider here, registered his fourteenth victory when he drove Calgary Kay, owned by Mrs. Bennie Chapman, of Bowie, home ahead of fourteen others in the six furlongs of the second.

Workman kept Calgary Kay right on top of the pace until straightened out in the stretch where he assumed command to win handily from Miss Pat, with Fair Bob third.

Lost Agnes Draws Away in Third.

The Montpelier Farm's Lost Agnes under a hustling ride by Johnny McTaggart surprised by winning the Elkhurst Purse, a 6-furlong sprint offered as the third race.

Mad Hattie and Lost Agnes alternated in setting the pace. At the turn for home Lost Agnes moved to the lead, but was soon joined by H. P. Whitney's Murky Cloud.

The two leaders battled it out down to the wire, with Lost Agnes drawing away from Murky Cloud in the last few strides. Third money went to George D. Widener's Shady Lady.

Bounding Deep Closes Fast in Fourth.

Frank Hayes' Bounding Deep ran a mile and one-eighth in 1:52 4-5, keen time for platers to win the fourth.

When the field of eight left the stall gates, Ruby Keller, Bucky Harris and Sanford rushed to the top, with little to choose between them as they started down the back lane. Sanford, going up fast on the outside, soon passed Bucky Harris, but Ruby Keller, coming again on the rail was leading as the field left the back stretch.

In the meantime, Workman was having difficulty making Sunny Saint, the odds-on favorite run.

Turning for home, Sanford was on top. Ruby Keller and Sanfordas still on top. Ruby Keller and Sanford were fighting for the lead, but Quackenbush crashed Bounding Deep up fast to take command. In the dash to the wire Bounding Deep easily whipped Ruby Keller, with Sanford third.

Mrs. H. Pyne's 8-year-old Villager closed with a rush to take down the purse in the final race here this afternoon. Outpaced for half of the journey, the Omar Khayyam—Virginia veteran of many such races, gradually gained ground once in his ight stride, and was much the best at the finish.

Fair Thorn, which moved to the front at the three-quarter pole, held on gamely to gain the place position. Voyage, the early pacemaker, weakened in the stretch, but managed to hold the show position safe from Corrine Star, with Workman up. Corrine Star was the favorite.

HIEAWAY improved her position steadily when well settled in her stride and outfinished TOTEM. Latter closed with a bold rush through the stretch. SUSTAIN raced forwardly and had no mishaps. SERGEANT DONALDSON came stoutly nearing the finish. ALICE VITE lost ground most of the way.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CALGARY KAY, $10.50, $5.70, $4.50; MISS PAT, $22.30, $18.40; FAIR BOB, $4.50.

CALGARY KAY gained stoutly after the first quarter mile, closed full of run in the closing test, disposed of the pacemakers and drew out the last sixteenth. MISS PAT worked her way up on the outside and finished determinedly for final drive. FAIR BOB, among the first division from the beginning, held on well. SPORTING FOOL began slowly. He closed with a rush when in his best stride.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LOST AGNES, $12.30, $5.10, $3.60; MURKY CLOUD, $3.00, $2.40; SHADY LADY, $3.70.

LOST AGNES, going in good form and hard hustled to shake off MAD HATTIE, disposed of the latter when approaching the home stretch, continued gamely when MURKY CLOUD, coming fast, gained, ran up to her in the last sixteenth. MURKY CLOUD broke fast, but was taken off the pace, forced to circle her field to take the lead in the last furlong, but tired from her efforts and hung in the final drive. SHADY LADY, prominent and going stoutly, held on well. ST. PRISCA was unable to keep in early contention and could not trouble the leaders at the end. CHATTERWOOD had no excuses. MAD HATTIE had speed for three furlongs and was not persevered with when she tired.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:10. Off at 4:13. Winner, Frank Hayes' ch. g. BOUNDING DEEP, following restrained off the leaders, came stoutly when put to a drive, finished boldly in the closing test and wore RUBY KELLER down in the final few strides. RUBY KELLER, rated along in front, withstood early opposition from SANFORD, gained a clear lead at the final furlong pace, but hung badly in the final sixteenth. SANFORD, kept in contention all the way, made repeated efforts, but weakened. SUNNY SAINT, well placed, was unable to get to leaders.

WILLIAM T., forwardly placed and going smoothly while being held under slight reserve, went into the lead with a rush at the far turn, withstood a challenge from TORO and drew out in the final stages. TORO, under stiff restraint early, made a determined bid when approaching the home stretch, but faltered and just lasted to outstay INCEPTION. Latter set a good pace while saving ground and held on courageously for the closing test. SIR HARRY was always outrun. DOCTOR FREELAND had keen speed when slipping through on the inside on the back stretch to get into a slight lead, tired and may have needed this race. DONNAY was through early.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:22. Winner, J. E. Smallman's b. m. MARY M'NEIL, sent into prominence at once, was shaken up when midway of the back stretch, overtook leaders when approaching the home stretch and, kept under pressure thereafter, drew out to win with speed in reserve. HARVARD, always well up and going in his best form, finished gamely and just lasted to stall off DUBLIN SHOW. HIGH LIFE raced evenly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:50. Off at 5:52. Winner, Mrs. H. Pyne's b. h. VILLAGER, as usual outpaced in the early running, made up ground rapidly when in his best stride, closed full of run and, in a game finish, was up in the last few yards. FAIR THORN secured racing room from a slow pace to reach prominent position, was given a breathing spell and held on well. VOYAGE, rushed to the front, saved ground, withstood early challenge, but weakened near the finish.

—Havre De Grace Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 25. An evenly balanced field of Preakness and Kentucky Derby candidate will meet in the mile and a sixteenth Chesapeake Stakes, closing feature of the Harford Agricultural and Breeders Association twelve-day spring meeting tomorrow.

Feature Race.

There is no outstanding horse in the Chesapeake. The one that wins will know he's been to the races. The Glen Riddle Farm's FULL DRESS, a black son of Man o' War and Shady, impressed as being a real good colt when he galloped home an easy winner of his only local start last Saturday.

It was a maiden race and he didn't beat much, but the manner in which he handled himself left the impression that it will take a good horse to beat him. He will be thoroughly tested in the Chesapeake. FULL DRESS takes on but two pounds over his last winning effort, while the others in the Chesapeake which have started here take on four or over.

NED O. failed to get through on the rail last Wednesday. Jockey Quattelbaum is scheduled to ride the gelding tomorrow. He knows the horse better than Freddie Stevens, so you can look for an improved effort. NED O. was a better juvenile last year than any of the others slated to go in the Chesapeake. CRAZY COOT was used quite a bit forcing a fast pace in the race MICHIGAN BOY won last Wednesday. Sonny Workman will probably use better judgment tomorrow. MICHIGAN BOY won going away in the Chesapeake Trial Purse. Everything was in his favor. Crazy Coot was used up making the pace and Ned O. was blocked when he attempted to make his move in the stretch. Michigan Boy will have to beat Crazy Coot and Ned O. again before we rate him the best horse of the trio.

FIRST RACE—SCHOONER has been up against it in his last two starts. Equipoise licked him the second day of this meeting and Vander Pool beat him at Bowie. Vander Pool won the Aberdeen last Wednesday and Equipoise finished third. This line makes SCHOONER best in the day's opener, a 4½-furlong dash for juveniles. SQUAB was a handy winner of her only start at Bowie. She didn't beat much and her stable evidently doesn't think well of her because she wasn't entered in many of the big stakes. GLIDELIA, from the same stable as SCHOONER, should be close up. This filly likes a soft track. JUST BELIEVE figures best of the others, which have started. AUSTERLITZ and ALL HAIL are new ones. The former will carry the Glen Riddle Farm silks and the latter will race in the interest of Walter M. Jeffords.

SECOND RACE—If PARTICULAR goes in the Greenwich, second event, it will be his first start this year. If he runs his race he can win. He has been working with and keeping up with JIMMY MORAN. The latter, we believe, is much better than his last races suggests. GUIDE RIGHT tried to go a route last Tuesday. He stopped after showing good early speed. He's right where he belongs now. WHILE AWAY has been racing with better company, with possibly the exception of the first two named. He may wake up. SUN VIEW is a plater and so are RED BRIAR, SIR JOHN and BLUE JOHN.

THIRD RACE — Sprinters of the class that will meet in the third number seldom run two races alike. Therefore we are going to string along with VIRADO, which will be coupled in the betting with MALOLO, a two-time winner at the meeting, if both start. MALOLO, we believe, is outclassed. VIRADO drops 6 pounds off his last race. It will be last day of the meeting, and he may run to his fast trials. GENUINE is fast, but he stops. It is almost certain one of them in the race will catch him. EQUATION went very well back of St. Prisca last Tuesday. He'll be close up if he repeats that race. TOKI has a lot of early foot, but no heart.

FOURTH RACE — ANNAPOLIS has only to run to his good morning trials to whip the high-class platers he will meet in the Shenandoah, fourth race. His two weeks' rest, after winning three straight at Bowie, no doubt did him a lot of good. STAR O' MORN won his last race here with ridiculous ease. He didn't beat a horse as good as ANNAPOLIS, however. FAIRY MAIDEN, a slow beginner, may not be able to get up in time. She always runs her race, but she's in a little deep this time. GERARD is another that may be stepping out of his class. SOLACE may need this one to tighten him up.

SIXTH RACE — VOWED VENGEANCE raced in his best form, and he ran a clever race, last Thursday. He changed hands after that effort, but his new owner is sending him back against the same class of horses he beat in the sixth number. FIRE OPAL would be better suited in muddy or heavy going, but over a fast track he figures close up in a contest like the sixth. HAYES' CHOICE is preferred over FAIR ALBERT.

SEVENTH RACE—ROYAL CHARGE is meeting the same class of platers in the nightcap that Vowed Vengeance meets in the sixth. We have selected Vowed Vengeance; so, therefore, we must take ROYAL CHARGE to win the seventh because Vowed Vengeance couldn't get close to him last Monday. BLANCO and DOCTOR FRED were both winners of their last races. We fancy them as named, but it's very close. TALL GRASS will like the long route.

GEORGETOWN NINE DEFEATS BOSTON COLLEGE, 7-6

Lomax Hurls Hilltop to 12th Win

G. U. Never Headed After 3-Run Attack in 3d Inning.

Morris Stars Afield; Temple Hits Home Run for B. C.

GEORGETOWN scored its twelfth baseball victory in fourteen starts yesterday on the Washington Barracks diamond at the expense of the Boston College Nine, 7 to 6. The invaders staged three-run rallies in the second and seventh frames, including a home run by Temple, with a mate on base.

Lomax toiled on the mound for the Hilltoppers and was in serious trouble but twice.

Johnny Scalzi's triple behind Mooney's single in the first gave Georgetown its initial run. Donovan's double after Morris had singled in the second and Bauman had forced the latter, gave the Hilltoppers another tally.

Georgetown practically clinched the verdict in the third when Mooney walked, stole second and scored on Scalzi's single; Wholley singled Scalzi to third and Bauman singled after Morris was safe on a fielder's choice.

McCarthy's Triple Turned In Run in 4th.

McCarthy's triple and Scalzi's infield out added another Blue and Gray counter in the fourth. Bauman singled in the fifth, stole second and scored on Lomax's double for the final G. U. tally.

Boston College's three-run splurge in the second was started by Regan, who singled. J. McCarthy followed with a double. Herman singled and Donovan walked. Creedon drove Herman over with a single.

Temple's home run came in the seventh after Doun had singled. Colbert walked and scored on Regan's double for the final Boston College markers.

HADLEY TO OPPOSE MACKMEN TODAY

finished next to last in the 1929 race, are likely to prove quite a surprise, the league head declares, as they appear to be fully 25 per cent stronger.

Myer's "Momentary" Catch Brilliant.

Buddy Myer yesterday received credit for the first "momentary" catch verdict which has been rendered in any game in which the Nats have figured this season. Ending the Athletics' third, he raced to the shortstop side of second for Bishop's near Texas leaguer. He snared the ball, took two steps and then fell, the impact knocking the ball from his hands. Umpire Campbell ruled that he had held the ball long enough to get credit for the catch. It was a great play, and even the Mackmen protested only mildly.

In the next frame, Goose Goslin gave the home fans cause for cheer when he raced in to short left to make a fine shoe-string catch of Cochrane's near Texas leaguer, Haas was on second at the time.

Pitcher George Earnshaw drew several remarks from the stands when he appeared in the first-base coacher's box wearing heavy gloves. He apparently was the only person in the park who thought it was cold.

After getting in a hole with two out in the A.'s seventh and Boley up, Brown purposely walked the shortstop to get Quinn. The latter had looked almost helpless while fanning his first time up, but, on his next trip, he had singled home a run. Brown showed that this latter safety was an accident by forcing the veteran flinger to go out on a roller.

Devitt Preps Easy For Business, 13 to 4

Batting around in the fifth inning to score 8 runs, the Business High School Nine routed the Devitt Prep Nine yesterday on the East Ellipse Diamond, 13 to 4. The feature of the big rally was Spencer Chase's hitting. He hit for the circuit the first time out in that frame and again hit for the round trip on his second appearance. He failed to touch second base on his second circuit, however.

The Devitt batsmen took to Silverman's offerings early, scoring all of their runs in the first three frames. After that Silverman was invincible, while his mates gradually became acquainted with the slants of Krusberg. They drove the latter from the mound in the fifth and continued to lambast the offerings of Gleason.

Loftus and Schneider shared in the batting honors for Business along with Chase. Schneider shone afield and at bat for the defeated Devitt Club.

Coming from behind yesterday in the ninth inning to tie the score, the Wonder Boys showed across two markers in the tenth to win. Cullins starred at bat with a Texas leaguer to right in the ninth, clearing the paths. Cuozzo, hurling for the winners, fanned 10 of the opposing batters.

King Pin, Baltimore Bowlers Split Honors

King Pin and Baltimore Bowling Center duckpin stars divided honors in their ten-game singles and doubles matches concluded at the Lucky Strike Alleys last night. George Lang, of Baltimore, by virtue of his 624 set last week, defeated Howard Campbell in the singles by 15 pins, although Campbell rolled up a 151 game and 622 set last night.

Bernie Frye and Jack Wolstenholme, of Washington, overcame a 50-pin advantage held by Leslie Askew and Ed Blakeney, of Baltimore, and gained the decision by a single pin.

Campbell's 96 score in his third game removed the opportunity to defeat Lang.

Mets Beat Western; Dispute Ends Game

The Metropolitan A. C. Nine, a contender for the senior championship of the Capital City League, defeated the Western High School tossers yesterday in an abbreviated six-inning fray on No. 3 Monument Diamond, 2 to 1. The contest was called at the end of the sixth frame, following a dispute among the players of the rival teams.

Herman Medler held the High School batsmen hitless and forced eleven to fan the air. A spell of wildness and a miscue by one of his mates enabled Western to score its lone run in the fourth.

Evans' home run with a mate on second accounted for the Metropolitans' two tallies in the third.

G. W. Racqueters Win From Generals, 8 to 1

George Washington University netmen, who will tackle the Army racqueters on the Congressional Club's courts this afternoon, yesterday disposed of the Washington and Lee Team on the Columbia Country Club courts, 8 to 1, winning five of six singles matches and all of the three doubles.

As is indicated by the number of deuced or close sets, the Colonials' victory was not as one-sided as the score would indicate. The Seidel and Staubley-Shields and Kelly doubles match featured, both sets being hot ones with a total of 36 games being needed before a decision could be reached. Summaries:

SINGLES—Considine (G. W.) defeated Gooch, 6—1, 6—4, 6—3; Staubley (G. W.) defeated Shields, 6—3, 1—6, 6—4; Seidel (G. W.) defeated Brady, 11—9, 6—2; Kelly (W. and L.) defeated Edge, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3; Goldsmith (G. W.) defeated Cox, 7—5, 6—0; Edwards (G. W.) defeated Clapp, 6—4, 6—10, 6—4.

WEAR NAMES DAVIS CUP PLAYERS

Lott, Doeg, Allison, Van Ryn in Zone Play Line-Up.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 25 (A.P.).—Joseph Wear, chairman of the American Davis Cup committee, today announced that George Lott, of Chicago; Johnny Doeg, of Santa Monica, Calif.; John Van Ryn, of Orange, N. J., and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., would represent the United States in American zone Davis Cup play this year.

Allison and Van Ryn, who scored a sensational victory in doubles in the challenge round against France last year, again will represent this country in the doubles. Lott and Doeg will play in singles.

Wear's selections were announced between sets of the Van Ryn-Allison match for the singles championship of the annual Mason and Dixon tennis tournament, Van Ryn winning in four sets.

The team's first test in the American zone will be against Canada at Philadelphia, May 15, 16 and 17.

Van Ryn defeated Allison in the final round of singles in the annual Mason-Dixon tennis tournament today. The scores were 4—6, 7—5, 12—10, 6—1.

British Pair Win Doubles; Team Has Fighting Chance

London, April 25 (A.P.).—A burly Yorkshireman and a lean, Dour Scot joined forces today to turn back the invading Germans in the doubles phase of the Davis Cup strife at the Queens Club, West Kensington, and give Britain a fighting chance to win the series.

J. Collin Gregory and his Scottish partner, I. G. Collins, scored Britain's first victory in three starts, defeating Walter Dessart and Heinrich Kleinschroth by 6—2, 6—4, 6—3.

The victory was sorely needed, as a few moments before the German singles ace, Daniel Prenn, had beaten H. G. N. Lee, 6—4, 7—9, 6—3, 6—2.

GOSLIN'S HOME RUN DEFEATS ATHLETICS

ball, Bluege cut over in front of him and missed his one-hand grabbing attempt. One run scored on this and another registered after the catch of Dykes' long fly. Boley then shot another at Bluege and the latter muffed it between bounces, this, too, going as a hit and scoring another run. Pitcher Jack Quinn, on the hill for the Athletics, surprised the world by singling another home, while a fourth tally scored on Bishop's one-baser to center. After Haas' hot one to Myer had been recorded as a hit, Brown put on the brakes.

Nats Forge Into 3-Run Lead.

Meeanwhile the Nationals had forged into an early lead. In the second, Myer's opening double, a helpful out and Judge's single netted a marker, while West's homer, a hit bateman, Goslin's single and Myer's out made the Nats three up in the third. Quinn then held them in check until they finally won out in the eighth, although Brown came through with a lusty triple with two dead in the seventh to give the Nats some hope of at least knotting the count in this "lucky" frame.

Loepp opened the eighth with a single to left and pandemonium reigned when Goslin crashed a liner over the right-field wall, putting the natives one to the good. They were not through yet, however, for Myer and Cronin followed with one-basers, which brought Knuckle-Baller Ed Rommel to the firing line for the Macks. Judge, the first to face him, advanced both runners on a nobby sacrifice. Bluege fanned, Ruel coaxed a pass, filling the bases, and Brown then topped one down the third-base line for a safety which let Myer register.

Marberry's Speed Frightens A's.

This gave the Nats what proved to be their winning margin, but the Mackmen were still full of fight and immediately made things look drab to the locals by getting the tying runs on the bases on singles by Simmons and Foxx, the first two up in the ninth. Marberry rushed to the hill at this stage and he actually had the Philadelphia batters frightened at his speed. One ball shot by Miller's right ear. He claimed that it had hit him, but if it had, his wife probably would have been a widow then and there. This seemed to stifle Miller's ambition and he fanned, while Schang, who was sent to the tee for Dykes, did not stand any too near the plate, finally hitting a long fly on which Simmons advanced to third.

This put it up to Boley and, when Marberry almost knocked the shortstop's bat out of his hand, he showed by his actions that he considered the locker room much safer and he quickly got himself there via the strike-out route.

It was a great game for the Nationals to win and that they simply would not give up, even after they had lost what appeared to be a comfortable early lead, made them many friends.

Goslin Leads Attack With 3 Hits.

Aside from the victory, there were many angles to the game which had the cash customers jabbering excitedly as they wended their way out of the stadium. Goslin gave every indication of at last having found his lost batting eye as, in addition to his homer, he cracked out two clean singles to lead both teams on attack, while West's homer, his second of the season, made his admirers sit up and take notice. Both of these drives were over the right-field wall, Goslin's going over on a line.

Brown fanned five and allowed but six fairly well-scattered hits except for that bad sixth frame. In addition, he fielded brilliantly, starting the only double-play made in the game, while he cracked out two hits, one a triple, to otherwise make his presence felt. Myer was the only other Nat to get more than one safety, while Haas, Simmons, Foxx, Miller and Boley were credited with two each for the visitors.

All of the good fielding plays were credited to Johnson's men. Myer, Goslin and Loepp came through in the early frames, while Cronin and Judge collaborated on a masterpiece in the seventh which prevented a Philadelphia run, for two hits followed. This play robbed Simmons of a safety opening the round. Cronin dashed over behind Bluege to snare the bounder with his gloved back hand. Quick as a flash, he let loose the throw, Judge making a great pick-up while falling, but holding on to the ball, to kill the batter on an eyelash decision.

Invasion of Army Feature Of Gala College Program

AN extensive, varied program of athletic events confronts District colleges today. One of the busiest week-ends of the spring season will be concluded with eight events today. Baseball games are listed for Catholic U., Maryland, Georgetown and Gallaudet; Lacrosse at Maryland, and tennis for Maryland and George Washington, while representatives of Georgetown and Maryland are competing in the Penn relays at Philadelphia.

A general invasion of West Point teams features the gala program today. The Army Lacrosse Twelve invades College Park to give the Old Line stickmen their first major test of the season. The Cadets also meet the Terrapins on the diamond, while George Washington's formidable tennis team will entertain the West Point net squad on the Columbia Country Club courts.

Georgetown's diamond squad will be seeking its thirteenth victory of the season when it engages the West Virginia tossers on Washington Barracks diamond. Manhattan College sends its diamond contingent to Brookland to meet Catholic University. Shepherd College, an old rival, will pit its baseball talent against Gallaudet's sluggers at Kendall Green.

The Washington and Lee racketers, who yesterday met George Washington, will oppose Maryland's netmen at College Park.

V. P. I. Netmen Blank Roanoke College, 7-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., April 25.—V. P. I. netmen made a clean sweep in five singles matches and two doubles events to blank Roanoke College racqueters, 7 to 0, here today for their second straight triumph.

The Bobbitt brothers, of Hot Springs, teamed together to register a doubles win after both had mastered strong opponents in the singles. Cervarich and Chapman, V. P. I., staged comebacks to win over Banner and Johnson, respectively, in close matches. Chapman and Wood fought through 43 games to down Allen and Rodman in the feature doubles match.

Fredericksburg Beats Alexandria High, 16-4

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 25.—Fredericksburg High School defeated Alexandria High here this afternoon, 16 to 4. Bailey, on the mound for the Yellow Jackets, allowed only three hits and had the big Reds completely at his mercy for eight innings when he was relieved. Alexandria threatened in the first when Schriener, first man up, connected for a three-base blow but was unable to score. The Jackets collected fourteen hits off Nicholson and Bray. Numerous errors by both teams marred the game.

St. Bonaventure Bows To Marines, 10 to 9

Quantico, Va., April 25.—The All-Marine Baseball Team again defeated St. Bonaventure here today in an exciting and uphill game, which went ten innings. At the end of the seventh the visitors were leading by a score of 9 to 3, but the Marines came to bat fighting. They scored three in the eighth and three in the ninth and the score was 9-all.

In the tenth, Eddie Gorman walked and stole second. Then Gatewood, the sea soldiers' left fielder, who has been hitting like a fiend, doubled to right to end the hostilities. Almond, the Devil Dogs' young twirler, who took up the pitching burden in the seventh, was the star of the game, fanning eight in the four remaining innings and driving in two runs with his bat in as many times up.

STOCKS SENT RISING BY PROFESSIONALS

Prices Decline Rapidly at Close as Nervousness Rules Market.

UTILITY LIST ADVANCES

New York, April 25 (A.P.).—The stock market was again flighty today. Professional operators for the rise appeared to be gaining control of the price movement by bidding up several fast-movers for a time, but failed to overcome widespread speculative nervousness, and the market repeated yesterday's performance of selling off rapidly in the last hour.

The day's backing and filling of prices left the price level practically unchanged, the index of 90 leading shares showing a loss of 1-5 of a point. Trading diminished considerably, the day's sales of 4,725,940 shares showing a reduction of about 300,000 from yesterday.

The motor accessory stocks broke sharply in response to reduction of the Stewart Warner annual dividend from $3.50 and 8 per cent in stock to $1. This development unsettled the market generally, and such additional business news as appeared was not particularly encouraging.

Retail Business Sags.

The weekly business and trade reviews reported a lull in retail and wholesale buying, accentuated by cold weather in the East, now that the Easter shopping season is past. The market was called upon to digest several more unfavorable first quarter earnings statements. Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., stated that there have been slight signs of business improvement since the first of the month, and that he looked for good business by the end of the year.

Credit conditions remained stationary, with call money repeating the process of renewing at 4 per cent and later slipping to 3½, with funds freely offered in the outside market at 3. Wall street has become accustomed to cheap money, and while it expects that plentiful credit will gradually tend to aid business, particularly building and construction, comparatively low rates appear to have lost their bullish flavor.

Several of the leading utilities were well bought. The price index of twenty leading issues from this group was elevated about 2½ points to a new high for the year. Consolidated Gas was in demand, reflecting disclosure that United Corporation had accumulated a large block at an average price of 121. The stock reached a new 1930 peak at 136¾, up about 4 points. Eastman Kodak was an isolated strong spot, rising 9 points to a new 1930 peak. Standard of New York was a firm feature of the oils, mounting 2 points to 40, the best level of the year. A. M. Byers sold up 5 points to a new high, and American Tobacco and American Can made substantial gains.

Stewart Warner Declines.

Stewart Warner tumbled 12 points on the cutting of the dividend, getting within a fraction of last autumn's minimum of 30. Auburn Auto broke 13 points, then regained half its loss. Air Reduction, American Bosch, Bohn Aluminum, Borg Warner, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Electric Auto Lite, United Aircraft and Motor Products sold off from 3 to 7 points. On the whole, leading shares were fairly well supported, although American Telephone, U. S. Steel and Radio lost a point or so.

Commodities were heavy. Wheat futures broke to new lows for the movement, closing about 1¾ cents lower, reflecting bearish weather and declines at Liverpool. Corn lost nearly a cent, and cotton closed $1 to $1.80 a bale lower.

Foreign exchanges were dull and fairly steady, although sterling cables sagged 3-32 to $4.86 11-32.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 25 (A.P.).—Rains in drought districts which previously had been skipped brought on heavy selling today that swept wheat down to new low prices for the season. At no time was there any evidence that the market was receiving much buying support from Government-sponsored agents. Export demand for North American wheat was also disappointing, and an official forecast of the 1930 wheat crop of India put the total at 30,000,000 bushels in excess of last year.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 1⅝ to 1¾c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ½c to 1c down; oats, ¾c to 2¼c off, and provisions showing 5c to 12c decline.

Final transactions of the day in wheat were within 1c of the bottommost level reached. Acute weakness of the market was apparent from the start, early dominating factors being rain reports from Kansas and Nebraska, with Liverpool quotations lower than expected. Later Oklahoma and Texas came to the front with advices of rains where needed, and predictions were of showers tonight over the greater part of both winter and spring wheat territory. Meanwhile, Liverpool price downturns were attributed directly to offerings of wheat from India and to the fact that the season's harvest in that country was officially estimated as 36,000,000 bushels more than latest figures from private sources.

Throughout the day previous speculative sellers who were in a position to collect profits did the bulk of the buying of wheat. Close observers said that little new investment buying was being done, except on standing orders from various quarters to purchase when the May dropped to certain fixed levels. One special depressing influence was a report that recent European takings of North American wheat were at 5c to 7c a bushel below a replacement basis. There were also reports current that rainfalls in spring wheat States and in Canada had insured all spring-sown grain a sufficient supply of moisture for the present.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat weakness. Besides, larger country sales of corn to arrive proved discouraging for holders, and the shipping demand here for corn was also slowing.

Provisions reflected the downtowns of grain prices, although hog values were tending upward.

RAIL AND U.S. BONDS SCORE SLIGHT GAINS

AMUSEMENT LIST MIXED

New York, April 25 (A.P.).—Firmness of the investment rails and of United States Government securities gave a brighter tone to the bond market today. Numerous high grade carrier liens moved up half to three-quarters of a point, representing the best move of the week in these pivotal issues.

Most of the improvement appeared in the late trading and closing prices were generally the highest of the day. Total sales the smallest for a five-hour session so far this year, dipped below $9,000,000, principal amount, but the decrease was accounted for by the small volume in American Telephone Convertible 4½s, which showed unusual dullness on a downward revision of prices that resulted in a 2-point net loss.

Money rates were unchanged, but there was an easier undertone to the market for term loans.

Baltimore & Ohio Rises.

The firmer rails included Santa Fe General 4s, and New York Central 5s, up ¾ each; New Haven Debenture 4s of 1957, up a point to a new 1930 high; Baltimore & Ohio Refunding 5s and Long Island 4s, also up a point; and Rock Island Refunding 4s, Erie 5s, Missouri Pacific "F" 5s, Nickle Plate "A" 5½s, and Pennsylvania 4¾s.

Amusement company bonds were mixed. General Theaters 6s sagged more than a point. Pathe 7s, with warrants ran up to a new high above 77, and although they failed to hold that figure the close was 1½ net higher. Shubert 6s likewise touched a new top, 69½, but finished a point below the Thursday final.

With the exception of the oil group, industrials tended to ease. Gains in American Smelting 5s, Inland Steel 4½s, U. S. Rubber 5s and International Match 5s were offset by losses in Wilson 6s, Western Electric 5s, Reading Coal & Iron 5s, National Dairy 5¼s and other representative issues. The Match Co. bond rallied more than a point to a new 1930 high.

Telephone Bonds Gain.

The American Telephone debenture 5s were firm, the 1960 issues rising half a point. In general, however, the utilities displayed considerable dullness and net changes were mostly inconsequential.

Foreign governments and corporation bonds showed moderate irregularity. Chile 6s, again very active, failed to move. Belgium 7s of 1955, Brazil 6½s, Uruguay 6s, Dominican First 5½s and Central Development 5½s pointed upward. On the other hand, Italy 7s, French 7½s and Norway 5s, among others, eased.

Gains in the Liberties and Treasuries ranged from one to five thirty-seconds of a point on small turnovers.

Rejuvenated by large scale ordering of the roads, railroad equipment manufacturers experienced, in 1929, one of their best years in the last decade, according to a current survey by the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, part of which follows:

Total Income Is $71,281,000.

"Reflection of more favorable operations is found in the record of 27 companies of the group, which reported net income for 1929 of $71,281,000, an increase of 45.1 per cent over that for 1928. Business conferences late in 1929 influenced the fruition of many orders early this year, with the consequence that new business quickly reached a peak, and lately has receded."

J. J. McLean, resident manager of Penner & Beane, members of the New York Stock Exchange, has returned from a business visit in New York.

PLEDGE
ON USED CAR SALES

1—Every used car is conspicuously marked with its lowest price in plain figures, and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.

2—All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned, and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.

3—Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days, and then, if not satisfied for any reason, turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used. (It is assumed that the car has not been damaged in the meantime.)

To the Public: We pledge adherence to the above policy in selling used cars.

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Speaking at the quarterly meeting of the State Auxiliary Firemen's Association in the auditorium of the Jefferson District Firemen's Hall yesterday, State Senator Frank L. Ball declared that the auxiliaries throughout the State have done more to aid the firemen than any other organization.

Discussing the question of firemen's relief, Senator Ball said the movement started in a small meeting held in Clarendon in 1926 and the following year the General Assembly passed an act giving to the firemen of Arlington County and Alexandria City compensation when injured in line of duty. Since that time Fairfax County has gained the same relief.

Other speakers were Mrs. John Travers, of Alexandria, State president; Walter U. Varney, president of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemens Association; and G. Frank Allwine, chief of the Jefferson District Fire Department.

The meeting opened with the invocation by the Rev. J. W. Townsend, pastor of the Calvary Methodist Protestant Church of Aurora Hills. Mrs. Ethel Thorpe, president of the Jefferson District Auxiliary, presided.

The program included solos by Mrs. Alice Grimes and Mrs. H. A. Allan, accompanied by Mrs. E. J. Skidmore.

The business meeting opened in the morning at 10 o'clock, with the State president, Mrs. John Travers, presiding. The invocation was given by the State chaplain, Mrs. I. M. Frye, followed by an address of welcome by Mrs. Ethel Thorpe, local auxiliary president.

Delegates attended the meeting from Alexandria, Luray, Orange, Harrisonburg, and Staunton.

Legion Is Opposed To Arlington Airport

Declaring that the establishment of a municipal airport in the vicinity of Arlington National Cemetery would violate the sacredness of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the graves of veterans, the executive committee of the District Department, American Legion, has adopted a resolution opposing the Bingham bill for the creation of an airport near Highway Bridge, it was announced yesterday.

The resolution also urges the abandonment of the two landing fields now maintained near the cemetery. Past experience has shown, the resolution reads, that planes hovering about these fields have caused much annoyance to funeral parties.

Loudoun Man Acquitted In Embezzlement Case

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., April 25.—Bryce Wenner, of Lovettsville, this county, who had been indicted by a Loudoun County grand jury at a previous term of court on a charge of embezzlement of $250 last November, was acquitted today after a two-day trial at the April term of Circuit Court in Loudoun County now in session here. The jury was out about 30 minutes.

Wenner, who is about 20 years old, claimed as he was driving back from the Hamilton National Bank to the farm of Mr. Rust, near Leesburg, where he was employed, he was crowded off the road by another automobile in which were three men, two white and one colored. His car crashed into a fence, he said, and one of the men alighted, held him up with a club and took the money from his pockets.

Apple Crop Is Hit By Cold Weather

Central Shenandoah Area Suffers Heavily by Spell of Frost.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 25.—While the thermometer again descended to 23 degrees this morning for the second time in the past 24 hours, there was little frost and plenty of air stirring, leading fruit growers to have hopes that at least one-half of the central Shenandoah Valley apple crop has been spared. The early commercial varieties have suffered greatest.

A consensus of orchardists is that the Timberville peach crop, the second largest in the State, has been wiped out by the frost. Only 25 per cent of the crop remained from severe winter weather and early spring frosts. The growers believe now that the normal crop of 300 carloads is practically a total loss.

From Timberville apple growers comes word that they are expecting at least a half crop, pointing out that the blossoms and buds were so heavy that the larger percentage of them could be frozen and still leave enough for a fair crop. The Chestnut Ridge orchard area, east of Harrisonburg, was harder hit than the Timberville area, according to local orchardists.

The Mount Jackson apple region in Shenandoah County reports material damage done.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was reading a book: "The Art of Public Speaking."

"Whatever got you interested in that subject?" I asked, glancing at the title over her shoulder.

"Please don't disturb me while I'm studying," she pleaded. "It's annoying, to say the least."

Rebuked, I slumped on the divan and delved into the newspaper, noting this headline:

WOMAN CANDIDATE
MAKES RADIO TALK

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick
Urges Greater Interest in Pending Politics

WANTS WOMEN TO HELP

Aha! That was probably what intrigued Luella.

"Did you, by any chance, hear Mrs. McCormick over the rad-dio?" I asked.

* * * * *

LUELLA hopped on me, pronto. "She's a Republican, and it's not rad-dio when she's speaking over it!"

"No? What is it?"

"Ray-dio."

"Ho-ho!"

"Yes."

"All right, did you hear her over the ray-dio-ho-ho?"

"I did, and she was inspiring."

"She must have been if she started you studying——"

Luella leaped from her chair, flung the book aside: "She not only started me studying, she started me thinking——"

Now that is an achievement.

* * * * *

SHE came charging at me with all the fire of a campaign speaker.

"We women are going to assert our rights!"

So that's it! A battle is impending. Good heavens! I was afraid she was going to practice on me.

"Your rights?" I purred, meekly.

"You heard me," she shouted, starting to mount a chair.

"All right, Luella, I heard you. What're yuh gonna do—get into politics?"

"Yes," she declared, "I'm going to throw my hat in the ring, along with Ruth Hanna McCormick's."

"That's why you're studying 'The Art of Public Speaking,' eh?"

"That's it. I'm going out on the stump——"

"A stump speaker. Well, well, well! The girl orator of the Potomac!"

"It's time the Nation had some women orators," said Luella. "It says here in this book that the four great American orators were Robert Ingersoll, Daniel Webster, Wendell Phillips and Patrick Henry——"

"Well, what of it? Who do you nominate, Carrie Nation or Barbara Fritchie?"

* * * * *

SHE ignored me. "It's a mighty poor showing. In the hands of men the Nation developed only four orators in 150 years. We'll do better than that!"

"Yeah? When're you gonna start?"

"As soon as we elect Ruth Hanna McCormick to the Senate."

By jove, this is beginning to look serious.

"How are you going to elect her?" I asked Luella. "You haven't even a vote in Illinois!"

"No," she said, "but I've got a third cousin in Peoria."

"Well, what's that got to do with it?"

"She's going to vote for Mrs. McCormick."

"How do you know she is?"

"Simply because she owes me money."

No doubt about it, Luella has the makings of a great politician.

EAST-WEST HIGHWAY LINK IS UNFINISHED

Traffic May Use Dirt Road if Concreted Strips Fail to Dry.

TRAFFIC LIGHT IS READY

Doubt that the two strips of concrete which have been laid beneath the Baltimore & Ohio underpass on the Sixteenth street extension to Georgia avenue will be dry enough to permit passage of traffic tomorrow was expressed last night by County Commissioner Lacy Shaw and State Roads Commission officials. Commissioner Shaw announced, however, that traffic would be allowed through the underpass over a dirt section.

Quick drying cement was laid in an effort to have the roadway ready for the Sunday traffic but this is believed impossible because of the unusually cool weather. Commissioner Shaw arranged with the roads commission officials, however, that the dirt road should be made ready for traffic. The section which is unpaved is very short, not more than 100 feet.

The new traffic light at the intersection of the Sixteenth street extension and Georgia avenue will be in operation Sunday.

J. R. Bird, of Rockville, Md., was arrested yesterday by County Policeman Windsor Poole, of the Rockville police headquarters, and charged with reckless driving. He is alleged to have been involved in two accidents within a half hour.

Bird is alleged to have been the driver of a car which collided with the car of Dr. C. C. Tumbleson, of the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring as the car was leaving the doctor's driveway near the hospital. Russell Bacon, colored, chauffeur for the doctor, also was charged with reckless driving.

Bird then drove off and shortly after that time, Policeman Poole received a call that a car had overturned near Olney. He arrested Bird and took him to Rockville, where his hearing was set for May 10.

Robbers jimmied a rear window of the store of Harry C. Darby at Beallsville, Md., early yesterday morning and stole goods valued at approximately $100, he reported to Corpl. Roy Bodmer, of the county police, at Rockville.

Pen Women Raise Bar to Controversy

Resolution Prohibits Discussion of Politics, Economics and Religion.

A resolution barring political, economic or religious issues from discussions of the National League of American Pen Women was unanimously adopted yesterday at the final session of the league's biennial convention in the Willard Hotel. The resolution also put the organization on record as "deprecating and deploring the injection of such issues" in the convention just closed. Kathleen Norris, noted novelist, who was slated for election as the league's new president, withdrew her name following criticism of her stand on disarmament and the so-called "Reds."

Mrs. Lily R. Hunt, who drafted and submitted the resolution, said that the convention headquarters had received numerous telegrams denouncing the injection of any issues in the campaign not pertinent to league work.

Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, who was elected president when Mrs. Norris withdrew, was installed at the closing session yesterday.

CONTINUANCE SET IN GRAVELY'S CASE

WOUNDED MAN APPEARS

After hearing testimony of James Crotts, of Lexington, N. C., that he was fleeing from what he believed to be a holdup March 19 when struck down at First and U streets northwest by a bullet through the back, Judge Robert E. Mattingly, presiding in the United States Branch of Police Court, yesterday continued until Tuesday charges of assault with a dangerous weapon against Detective Spotswood F. Gravely, recently suspended from the police force.

Crotts, in a weakened and painful condition from his wounds, was taken to court from Casualty Hospital in a private auto. He was permitted to remain in a comfortable chair instead of going through the ordeal of questioning on the witness stand.

Protests by Attorney.

He admitted, over protests of his attorney, Raymond Neudecker, that he was in the vicinity of the 1900 block of First street northwest on the night of March 18 and the early morning of March 19. Every question propounded thereafter brought an objection from Mr. Neudecker that Crotts' testimony would tend to incriminate him later in a conspiracy case pending before the District Supreme Court. Crotts, John Elgin and Ardie Swortzel, the latter a suspended policeman, are charged in indictments with conspiring to extort money from Marie Foster, alleged occupant of the First street house near where the shooting of Crotts occurred.

Crotts said he and Elgin were seated in an automobile waiting for Swortzel when Gravely and Detective William F. Burke, of the Third Precinct, drew up behind in another car. Believing the detectives were bent on robbery, Crotts said Elgin told him he had little money for them to take, any way. Crotts had some money, he said, so he walked to First and U streets northwest and then broke into a run. A bullet felled him at this point, he testified, and Gravely a few seconds later picked him up to send him to the hospital.

Capt. William Stott, commander of the Third Precinct, and Gravely's superior, related a conversation he held with Gravely the morning of the shooting at the police station. Gravely told him, according to his testimony, that Crotts had refused several commands to halt and finally stopped in his dash to reach for his hip pocket. Believing that the man was armed, Gravely shot, Capt. Stott said.

Burke Tells Same Story.

Detective Burke also testified that he saw a movement toward Crotts' hip pocket before the shooting.

John Elgin gave substantially the same testimony as Crotts, stating that the trio went to the First street house to "see some girls." The testimony of Swortzel, the third member of the party, and of a man named McVey, a taxicab driver who is said to have been present at the shooting, will be offered next week.

Before the shooting, Crotts, Elgin and Swortzel are said to have attempted to "shake down" the First street house on the promise of "police protection." Miss Foster, complaining witness in the alleged "shake-down" case, was the person who hailed Burke and Gravely as they passed in an automobile after receiving instructions to investigate a robbery in the vicinity.
